This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

PREFACE.

It is the custom with some persons to depreciate, and even to ridicule, genealogical inquiries and labors. The study of pedigree, seems to them, not only tedious, but profitless. They have no reverence or love for the past, and it is a matter of indifference, who their ancestors were, or whether they ever had any. This is sometimes an eccentricity,—sometimes a proud independence, which ignores ancestry, in order to increase its own importance, and show that its heights and honors have not been attained through the wealth, patronage or name of progenitors. But a more fruitful cause of this low estimate, has been the boasting and arrogance of some, with reference to their distinguished ancestors. There is a false and foolish pride of lineage, which deserves censure and ridicule. It was such conceit that prompted the retort of Cicero, when a patrician said to him, "You are a plebeian." "I am a plebeian," replied the eloquent Roman orator, "and the nobility of my family begins with me, but that of yours, will end with you." The vain reliance upon remote and doubtful pedigrees, and the arrogant assumption of place and honor by reason of distinguished descent, without corresponding merit, was well ridiculed by Lord Chesterfield, when he placed among the portraits of his ancestors, two old heads, inscribed—Adam De Stanhope, and Eve De Stanhope. It has been justly observed, "all that a man can rightfully lay claim to, is his own name; the embellishment should be his own, not that of his defunct predecessor." This thought has been expressed by Chapman, with great felicity and force in these lines:—

'Tis poor, and not becoming perfect gentry,
To build their glories at their fathers' cost;
But at their own expense of blood or virtue,
To raise them living monuments; our birth
Is not our own act; honor upon trust,
Our ill deeds forfeit; and the wealthy sums,
Purchased by others' fame or sweat, will be
Our stain, for we inherit nothing truly
But what our actions make us worthy of.

There have been so much conceit and arrogance, in respect to lineage, that even wise and good persons have been led to underrate the importance of the subject. Thus, the excellent Rev. William Jay, of Bath, in his autobiography, (vol. 1, 19th p.) says:—"I have not to trace a long and proud lineage. If any great and illustrious individuals have been found among my ancestors, they have not been ascertained in my family, in my own time. But were I mean enough, to feel any mortification here, I could not console myself. When one of Lord Thurlow's friends was endeavoring to make out his relationship to the Secretary Cromwell, whose family had been in the county adjoining Suffolk, he replied, 'Sir, there were two Cromwells in that part of the country, Thurlow the Secretary, and Thurlow the Carrier, I am descended from the latter.' We have read of a man, who in prospect of his promotion, being asked concerning his pedigree, answered 'he was not particularly sure, but had been credibly informed, that he had three brothers in the ark.' But one of our most distinguished poets surpasses this, in his epitaph:—

'Princes and heralds, by your leave
Here lie the bones of Matthew Prior,
The son of Adam and of Eve,
Can Nassau or Bourbon go higher?'"

Bishop Chastel was one of the most learned divines of the 16th century, bishop of Orleans, and great almoner of France. Francis I. asked him, 'Whether he was born a gentleman?' Chastel answered, 'That he was not perfectly certain from which of Noah's three sons he was descended.' Every genealogist, in his appeal for information, has doubtless sometime met a response like the following:—"The answer which you seek of me, O illustrious friend and joy of my liver!" wrote an eastern Cadi, in reply to M. Layard's inquiries about certain antiquarian statistics, "is both difficult and useless to be given." But while there is danger of our setting too high a value upon our pedigree, yet it is well to remember our ancestry, nor is it wrong to recount and rejoice in, their achievements and worth. Inspiration recognizes the intimate connection between ourselves and our ancestry, when it asserts "children's children are the crown of old men; and the glory of children are their fathers." Parents and children, ancestors and descendants, reflect honor or dishonor upon each other. Virtuous and godly children are as gems in "the crown" of a venerable and virtuous old man, and in filial honor, they in turn, cherish him as their "glory." So too, such as have good blood in their veins, yet have no analogous excellence in their characters, dishonor those who bore them. And this law unites successive generations in a common life and history. Clever has well stated this mutual relation. "A good root," says he, "maketh the branches to flourish, by virtue of the lively sap that it sendeth up. And flourishing branches win praise to the root, for the pleasant fruit which they bring forth." They who transmit a good name, noble examples, and a pure faith, lay their descendants under sacred and lasting obligations of gratitude for, and emulation of, ancestral faithfulness and piety.

The more one studies history, and races, and families, the more must he be convinced of the marked and permanent influence of BLOOD. Despite all the crossings by intermarriages, every genealogist has marked, and marvelled at the continuance, from generation to generation, of some particular type of character, that was visible in the earliest known ancestor. This fact has been strikingly illustrated in the descendants of many of the early Pilgrim, or Puritan colonists. To read aright the lesson of human history, to reach wise and safe generalizations, one must not forget the law of descent, and the force there is in blood or race. "Religion does not run in the blood of that family," said an aged but observing man, as a vicious youth passed him. "I have known the family for several generations, but I have never known any among them who gave evidence of piety."—The qualities and forces of the character do "run in the blood," and whether good or bad, are propagated, and pass down through successive generations. In some families, the parents, and the ancestors, back to an early period, have been marked by moral and christian excellence. The family of the elder Edwards is an illustration of this law and force of Blood. His ancestors, for many generations, were eminent for religious worth. And his numerous progeny have, with few exceptions, "flourished by reason of the lively sap sent up from the good root." Wherever they are found, they are characterized by the moral qualities, and illustrate, in no small degree, the spirit of their illustrious and godly ancestor. And this force of Blood, is just as visible in the transmission of evil qualities, giving to some families, through long periods, "a bad eminence," perpetuating a type of character, with which, religion or intelligence are rarely, if ever, united.

It is argued, by such as underrate genealogical research, that every claim upon the esteem of others, is founded upon character, and that this embodies every quality that can justly command the affection and reverence of men. But as character is not altogether isolated from, nor independent of ancestral fountains, from which, the native impulses, the mental and moral tendencies and forces, have come, the subject of pedigree belongs, clearly, to the history of every man's mind and life. Our ancestors live in us. Though dead, they speak. In nature, below man, the various orders of being, animate and inanimate, do little more than repeat ancestral forms and habits. Man also, is a derivation from the past, and ought to be considered and weighed in connection with it.

The study of genealogy, therefore, has important scientific and moral uses. It summons the Past, to interpret the lives of men, with respect to physical, mental and moral character. It shows how the Past has poured itself into our present life. It embalms in the memory of the living, the lessons, examples and obligations, of an honorable lineage, and as the Romans when emigrating to foreign climes, took with them the carved images of their fathers, and set them in the choicest places of their new homes, so it sets the images of our ancestors before us, to be an inspiration and benediction to our life.

MATTERS PERSONAL. ORIGIN OF THE WORK, &c.—Seven years since, in a respite from professional labor, the subscriber undertook what had been a long cherished purpose, viz., to trace his descent from James Walker, one of the first settlers of Taunton, Mass. The materials thus gleaned, respecting the ancient Walkers of T. induced him to extend his plan and compile a complete genealogy of the Family. It was soon discovered that they were allied with the Rehoboth Walkers, and the plan was enlarged, so as to include this more fruitful Branch. As the ancestor of the Eastham Family emigrated to this country in the same ship with James of Taunton, it was supposed that they were related, and accordingly his descendants were traced. At length, in view of the fact of there being no less than 14 of the name of Walker, ancestors of distinct branches, in the country even before 1650, and the wide extent and frequency of the name at the present time, it was determined to limit the work to the Walkers of the Old Plymouth Colony and their descendants. This plan required the addition of the Families of John of Marshfield and Thomas of Bristol. The compiler has been successful in obtaining information respecting all the lineal descendants of these early settlers, with a very few exceptions, and especially those of Taunton and Rehoboth lineage. It is thought that in no similar work, equal in size, have fewer branches been left incomplete. The publication of the work has been deferred, that every measure which promised success, might be taken, to trace every male line down to the present time, and include every descendant named Walker. The fulness of these Genealogies in this respect, may be seen by reference to pages 420, 21, of the Appendix. They embrace the period between 1618 and 1860.

One who has had no experience in genealogical inquiries, can form no just idea of the amount of labor required, to collect and arrange the names and materials of the biography of the widely scattered and numerous descendants of the early settlers, through a period of two centuries and a quarter, the labor of extensive correspondence, examination of town and state records, histories, ancient wills, and deeds; labor greatly increased also, by the delay, and in some cases, refusal of those from whom information was sought. His labor arising from these latter sources, delay and indifference, the compiler has reason to suppose, have not been greater, than what is usually the experience of a family historian. But no complete and accurate Genealogy can be prepared without an expenditure of time, and money, for which no adequate remuneration can be expected, save in the pleasure attending such pursuits, and the consciousness of doing something, in grateful reverence, to enshrine in a permanent Memorial, the lives and virtues of one's ancestors and kindred—a Memorial, which, while it may be no mean offering to their worth, may also be to the descendants, full of inspiration to piety and patriotism, as they trace their lineage from the self-sacrificing founders of civilization, and the brave and steadfast defenders of freedom in this New World. The compiler has spared no pains nor expense to secure thoroughness and accuracy. Records have been examined and re-examined, and all correspondence, some of it illegible and with its facts badly arranged, has been carefully compiled and copied. As the highest merit in a Genealogy is correctness, this has been sedulously labored for, and if persistent efforts to verify dates, harmonize conflicting statements, and make a Memorial complete and reliable, can accomplish the object,—this work is a success. If any do not find so full an account of themselves and families as was anticipated, it is because in most instances no more was furnished. To some extent there has been a condensation of the materials, but generally in respect to those who have evinced no interest in their publication, as justice demanded that subscribers and their families should have the largest space consistent with the plan of the book. Various traditions obtain in some branches of the Family respecting their ancestors, and the time of their emigration to this country. But what is stated in this work concerning their advent, is sustained by abundant and incontestable proofs. None of these traditions reach back far enough into the early history of New England.

ABBREVIATIONS AND EXPLANATIONS.—ae. for aged; abt. for about; b. for born; bapt. for baptized; bef. for before; chil. for children; d. for died; dau. for daughter; dec'd for deceased; Bap. for Baptist; Cong. for Congregationalist; Meth. for Methodist; Pres. for Presbyterian; Epis. for Episcopal; m. for married; unm. for unmarried; m. ch. for member of the church; In'y and Inv'y for Inventory; (Ins.) for Inscription on tomb-stone; grad. for graduated; pub. for published; rem. for removed; Rec. for Records; Prop. Rec. for Proprietors' Records; Plym. Col. Rec. for Plymouth Colony Records; Rep. for Representative; Res. for residence; res. for resides; w. for wife; wid. for widow; yr. for year; Coll. for College; N. S. for New Style; O. S. for Old Style. The names for towns are abbreviated, as Mid'o for Middleboro; D'n for Dighton, and the initial letter only is frequently used, when the name has been given in full just before. Dates since 1800 are sometimes abbreviated thus, '29 for 1829. There are other abbreviations, of such common use, that the meaning will be obvious.

A name in parenthesis, thus, Sarah Richmond, dau. of Wm. and Anna (Gray) indicates the maiden surname of Anna, w. of Wm. Richmond. (See 34th p.) An interrogation mark (?) implies doubt, or want of absolute certainty. Sometimes two dates of the same event are given, the authority being so nearly equal, that the compiler could not determine which is the correct one. Where town and family records, as in some instances, disagree, or members of the same family have reported different dates, and insist upon their accuracy, both are given, one of them being placed in brackets. If discrepancies between the dates given here, and those of their ancient family records, are discovered by any persons, such should consider whether the difference between Old and New Style will not harmonize them. Undoubtedly in a few instances, where no family records exist, names and dates have been furnished from memory, and errors may be discovered. But these will be found only among the living or later generations, and for them, the compiler is not responsible. As the orthography of names varies in different families, the compiler has reproduced the spelling which was furnished him, except where there were obvious errors. Birthplaces are not always stated where the dates of birth are given, but they can be ascertained by reference to the person's father, and his residence at the time of the birth.

OLD AND NEW STYLE.—In computing time, the solar year is reckoned 365¼ days, but this is too much by 11 minutes and a fraction. If this excess be neglected, in the course of centuries, the 1st of January would fall back towards midsummer, and in 1582, the time of Pope Gregory XIII., it was found that the vernal equinox which in A. D. 325 happened on the 21st of March, actually occurred on the 10th of March. For the purpose of rectifying the calendar, the Pope ordered that 10 days be dropped from that year. This was called "New Style" and the former calendar, "Old Style." The new calendar was soon adopted in all Catholic countries, but in England and her colonies, it was disregarded till 1752, when the error of the old calendar amounted to 11 days, and by an Act of Parliament, they were dropped from Sept. of that year. Some persons may not understand the double dating, like Feb. 9, 1684–5, on p. 23, No. 9. The real date is Feb. 9, 1685. The civil or legal year in England, formerly commenced on the 25th of March, and was so reckoned till 1752, when the new or Gregorian calendar was adopted, which makes the year commence on the 1st of January. But before that period, as some other nations had adopted the New Style, it was usual for English and American writers to designate both years, if the event occurred before the 25th of March. If the year commenced the 25th of March, the date would be Feb. 9, 1684, if the year began the 1st of January, the date would be Feb. 9, 1685, and changed to New Style by addition of 11 days would be Feb. 16, 1685.

ARRANGEMENT OR PLAN OF THE BOOK.—The plan adopted, is that recommended by the Genealogical Register, and which after examination of published genealogies, appeared to the compiler, the most intelligible. Experience has confirmed his choice, and no other plan, yet devised, is so simple and so easily comprehended, by persons not familiar with genealogical works.

The numbering is enumerative, the numerals at the left of the page giving the whole number of Walkers down to any period or generation. The small figure over a name at the right, thus James,[6] indicates the generation to which this person belongs, reckoning from his earliest ancestor in this country. A few moments attention to the directions which follow, will enable the reader to ascertain the pedigree, and find the descendants of any person whose name is given in Part I. of the Index. The figure at the right of a name in brackets, thus, "CHILDREN OF LIEUT. JAMES WALKER,[4] [10]" on p. 30, refers backward to No. 10, 24th p., where an account of this James[4] will be found. He is one of the "Children of James Walker,[3] [5]" and by referring to No. 5, 21st p., an account of his father may be found. And James, No. 5, is one of the "CHILDREN OF JAMES WALKER,[2] [2]" and referring to No. 2, 4th p., it will be seen that he is descended from the 1st James[2] of Taunton, son of [redacted]dow Walker[1] of Rehoboth. Reversing the method, in order to trace descendants, the figure at the right of the name in parenthesis, thus, JAMES WALKER,[2] (5) on 4th p., refers to what follows at No. 5, 21st p., and shows where the children of James, No. 2, may be found. In No. 5, James,[3] (10) on 21st p., the 10 in parenthesis refers to No. 10, on 24th p., where the children of James, No. 5, may be found. No. 10, James,[4] on 24th p., has 27 in parenthesis, thus, (27) which indicates where this James' children may be found. (See 30th p.) No. 27, James,[5] (59) on 30th p., the 59 in parenthesis refers to No. 59, on the 37th p., where the son of James, No. 27, is found. This line terminates here, the descendants of James, No. 59, if he had any, having baffled all research, and accordingly he has no reference number. But No. 61, Eliakim, on the same page, has the reference number (121) for which see the 50th p., where Eliakim's children are found, and by observing these directions, it will be easy to trace Eliakim's grandchildren and descendants, or those of any other person. The children and descendants of the females are not carried forward to the next generation, but their names and all that pertains to them, appear in connection with their Walker mothers or ancestors, though in smaller type. In some instances, these sketches embrace several generations, as with the descendants of Mehetable, No. 15, on 25th page.

A copious Index is furnished, so that the names of all the Walkers, and of all persons who have married Walkers or their descendants, if mentioned in this Memorial, may easily be found, and whatever account is given of them, be referred to. A full and valuable Summary may be found in the Appendix, pp. 415, 16. It will be well for the reader also to examine the ADDITIONS and ERRATA, on pp. 417—420 and 451, and by some mark on the pages where they properly belong, indicate a reference to them, especially those which relate to themselves, or kindred.

Some persons bearing the name of Walker and descended from other early settlers, may imagine that this work, purporting to be a

Digitized by Google

Genealogy of the Walkers, contains an account of themselves and families. Such will be disappointed, as those only are included who are of Old Colony lineage. They will however find much pertaining to the History of the name, that will interest them, and possibly may find the root from which they are sprung, in the Appendix, (p. 401—407,) which contains the names of the other Walkers in New England previous to 1700.

It may perhaps seem needless for the compiler to say, that he has been gratified by the interest evinced by the members of the different branches of the Walker race, especially those of Taunton and Rehoboth origin. It is impossible for him to mention here the names of all, who by words of encouragement and by prompt and full correspondence, have done so much to bear him through an enterprise demanding such unlimited patience, and in which, completion can be achieved only by years of labor. Without forgetting his obligation to any, he cannot forbear however to publicly and gratefully acknowledge the services and hearty co-operation of George Walker and Richmond Walker of Taunton, Abel B. Walker of Andover, Rev. Horace D. Walker of East Abington, the late James O. Walker of Swanton Centre, Vt., Abel Walker of Whiting, Vt., Hon. Zuriel Walker of Ferrisburgh, Vt., Hon. John A. Walker of Pittsfield, Thomas Walker, Esq. of Utica, N. Y., Hon. Edward C. Walker of Detroit, Mich., Prof. Charles M. Walker of Indianapolis, Col. Amasa K. Walker of Hampden, Me., Joseph Brown of Seekonk, John W. Higgins of Eastham, and Miss Maria Thomas of Marshfield. He is also indebted to those who so readily responded to the request to furnish the portraits which embellish the book, and which render it far more valuable as a Memorial of the Walkers. Several were constrained to withdraw their pledges to this effect, but others and a greater number have supplied their places, so that but one of the many Family histories now published, equal in size to the Genealogies of the Taunton and Rehoboth Branches, is so abundantly illustrated with portraits.

The descendants of these Old Colony Families, have generally belonged to the agricultural and mechanical classes, and have been characterized by good sense, sound judgment and christian excellence. None have achieved celebrity in literature or statesmanship. They have mostly helped swell the ranks of the honest and pious yeomanry of New England and the West. It is interesting to trace the transmission of the Puritan faith, to see the streams, originating in the piety of the good Dea. Philip Walker of Rehoboth, and James of Taunton, the honored magistrate, coursing down the centuries and over the land, yet maintaining their purity, and bearing moral fertility wherever they have gone. The compiler has added a feature to this work which has not generally been introduced. He has endeavored to ascertain the religious sympathy and church relation of each person. It has seemed to him, that for the highest use of a Genealogy, it is important to know whether a person is "born of God" as well as "born of the will of man." The biography of multitudes may be summed up in the statement of the author of Euthanasy, "born upon such a day—died upon such another, with an utter blank between." But with a religious birth to fill this "blank" of some unhonored and lowly man or woman, with steady and attractive piety, the life becomes useful, even noble, answers "life's great end," and is worthy of a record here, as it has a record on high. Of such, it can never be said they were

> "Fixed to one peculiar spot
> To draw nutrition, propagate, and rot."

With a name on which no stain has ever rested, with an ancestry not often great, but always virtuous, filling, with fidelity and honor, the stations they were called to occupy, one may justly be proud of his lineage. It is the hope of the compiler, that all who by means of his labors, find that such are their name and ancestry, may be grateful for the "glory" they have in "their fathers," and learn from them, that "the richest bequest which any man can make, for the benefit of posterity, is that of a shining and spotless example."

INTRODUCTION.

WALKER. ORIGIN AND MEANING OF THE NAME.—Surnames have originated from various sources, such as localities, occupations, offices, social relations, and personal qualities or peculiarities, character and history. Others are Norman names, dating from the Conquest. Two other classes are derived from the Christian names of father or mother, and from the animal, mineral or vegetable kingdoms. Local English names constitute the most numerous division, and unlike those of occupation, do not indicate the condition, or social rank of those who first bore them.

The custom of assuming or applying names from the various pursuits of life obtained at a very early period. Among the Romans, many and even those of the highest rank, had such names. "These names became hereditary in England next in order, after the local names, about the 11th and 12th centuries, and form a large class. They had a prefix le, as Stephen le Spicer, le Bakere, &c. in records of 12th and two succeeding centuries." Walker, says Lower in his "Surnames," signifies either (Anglo Saxon wealcere) a fuller or an officer whose duty consisted in walking over or inspecting a certain space of forest ground. In the North of England, a fulling mill is still called a 'walk-mill,' and at Alfrich, Co. Worcester, there are some thin strata of unctuous clay of a whitish hue, still called Walker's clay. The same custom obtains in the South of Scotland, where the Walkers are numerous. There is a string of names, Lower adds, derived from occupation, which sounds right odd, when placed in juxtaposition, and which prima facie, would appear to be fully as applicable to the equine as to the human species, viz., Traveller, Walker, Ryder, Ambler, Trotter, Hopper, Skipper and Hobler. Ryder means another forest officer, a superintendent of the Walkers, a ranger who derived his name from the circumstance of being mounted, and as having a larger district to supervise. From this, it is clear that Lower leans to the opinion that Walker is a name of occupation. Arthur, in his work on the Etymology of names, gives it the same signification. The Anglo Saxon Dictionary, however, has the following definition, viz., "Wealc, a revolving, a revolution of heavenly bodies. Wealcan p. Wealc, (hence to walk.) To roll, turn, &c.; to return often. Wealcre, es. m., a fuller; in Lancashire, a Walker, s." A writer in the Edinburgh Review, in an essay on

English surnames, says, "Many of these names of employment survive, and remind us of crafts which have long ceased to exist," and he gives among his illustrations, "Le Waliker, (Waliker that is Fuller.")*

It will be seen that authorities differ as to the signification of the name, and leave it difficult to determine which theory is the more correct. Probably, however, both meanings are true, and the name had a double origin; in some parts of England, being derived from the occupation of a forest officer, and in the North of England and Scotland, originating from the employment of a fuller. This seems the more rational conclusion. The change in the ancient surname of the Walkers of Manor House, Bushey, Co. Hertfordshire, from Forestier to Walker, (see few pp. onward) favors this supposition. And may not some branch of the Fullers have adopted the name of Walker, and as a fulling mill was also a walking mill, may not some have chosen the former, while others selected the latter as their surname?

ANTIQUITY OF THE NAME.—The following in respect to persons bearing the name, in England, mostly persons of distinction, is introduced as part of its history. It is with no idea that these very ancient Walkers are in any way related to the Walkers who came to New England. The English origin and pedigree of the Families included in this work are entirely unknown, and it would be sheer presumption to infer that they were descended from any whose names are given in this introduction. The name even before the year 1600, was so common and extensive, and as a name of occupation had so many independent roots, or an origin in so many different places, as to give no justification to any theory of descent and relationship. So "mighty" or numerous was the name in England 250 years ago, that the compiler came at length to entertain no hope of ascertaining the pedigree of his ancestor, or of other Walkers contemporaneous, in the Old Colony, having no other fact to guide his researches, than that James and William sailed from London in 1635. He has found no coats of arms nor tradition of any, in these Families, and if their ancestors were entitled to any, which is not probable, all memory of them is lost.

As most of the English surnames took root between the Norman Conquest of 1066 and the Revolution of 1688, the historical notices which follow, are embraced within this period. These are selected from a great number, as there is no end to the use of the name in numerous English works.

EXTENT OF THE NAME.—From the preceding notices of persons of eminence, it may be inferred that Walker was also a common name, among the humbler ranks of society through all the periods of English history. It is not only English, but prevails extensively in Scotland,* and to some extent in Ireland. There are many of the name now in this country, who are of Scotch birth.

With "the list of the Pedigrees contained in Wm. Paver's consolidated Visitations of Yorkshire," being those taken in 1584, 1612 and 1665, there is also a list of allied families, with the number of times each name appears. There are 1352 names. Walker appears 11 times, and is exceeded by only 9 names in the list.

At one time, a list of 60 of the most common surnames, in England and Wales, was made, and a register was kept of the number of births, marriages and deaths, in one year, with this result: Of the strictly English family names, Smiths were most numerous, Jones next in order, and Taylors, third. Of the names derived from employments, whether official or manual, Wright, Walker, Turner, Cooper, Clark, Baker, occupy next to Smith & Taylor, the highest place. The names in this list are called "the mighty sixty." Walker is the 17th in rank, and of names of occupation holds the 4th place.

"The Encyclopedia of Heraldry" gives 52 different families of Walkers, with their arms. Of these, 5 were in Scotland, 1 in Ireland, and 1 in Barbadoes. The others were distributed in almost every county of England.

"Burke's Landed Gentry," published 1853, gives 11 families of Walkers, (with their arms,) to be found in different counties.

Seventeen persons named Walker, had been graduated at Oxford University, previous to 1828.

The London Directory for year 1855, gives 234 names of Walkers, business and professional.—(See Appendix, pp. 407, 8, for the commonness of the name in the cities of this country.†)

*The original of Jeanie Deans, in the "Heart of Mid-Lothian" by Sir Walter Scott, was Helen Walker, who d. 1791. He erected a monument to her memory, in the church-yard of Irongrey, Edinburgh, inscribing it with a just and beautiful tribute to her worth. It closes thus, "Respect the Grave of Poverty, when combined with love of truth and dear affection."

†In the year 1858, there were 55 Postmasters in the U. S., named Walker, and only 4 of them belonging to the families included in this work—a fact that shows how widely and numerously the name has spread over this country.

1. "WIDOW WALKER," (2)

Of Rehoboth, Mass.

She was one of the first purchasers and proprietors of the town of Rehoboth or Seacunk, now Seekonk, and one of the company who first settled there. Her name is in the list of those who in 1643 gave in the value of their estates, for a pro rata division of the lands. Hers was £50. In the division made June 31, 1644, she had a share, and lots were assigned her in several divisions afterward, as in drawing for the Great Plain, and on the 18th of 12 mo.(Feb.) 1646, for the new Meadow.

Her name then disappears. When and from whence she came to New England, and where she died, are not known. There is no record to tell us her age or her character. No trace of her biography is found, save the already noticed facts of her being associated with an adventurous company, most of whom went out from Weymouth into the wilderness,—a company marked for its religious character, (being a majority of the church at W.,) the highly educated and scholarly Rev. Samuel Newman being in some respects the Leader of the enterprise.—Her christian name and that of her husband, are never given. In the early records of the town, she has invariably the touching, sorrowful title of Widow, suggesting the history of blighted hopes, and a grief-stricken heart. Perhaps she had one to protect and cherish her when she left her native land,—and burying him in the sea came here alone,—or perhaps together, they had reached these shores, and were struggling in mutual help and loyalty to bear the toils, trials and perils incident to the settlement of a new country,—when death snatched him from her fellowship. But the more probable supposition is, that becoming a widow in England, she emigrated, perhaps with her younger son Philip, after the coming of James and Sarah. Bereft of counsellor and helper, she would naturally follow her children, and seek the sympathy and aid of her brother, or possibly only her brother-in-law, Mr. John Browne. That she did not come with them in 1635, and did not appear till 8 years afterward, favors this theory. James and Sarah, as favorites of their uncle Mr. Browne, and bereft of a father's counsel and support, may have been induced by his encouragements, to try their fortunes in the New World, leaving the mother behind with their younger brother, till they should learn how the experiment would issue.—Old enough to be of service, perhaps they were really indentured as "servants to Jo. Browne," and not merely, as a device to escape the pursuivants of the King in their attempt to get out of England. But these are conjectures merely. The interest of Mr. Browne in his nephew and niece, the two young emigrants of 1635, and the fact of their mother the "widow" being associated with Mr. B. in the settlement of Rehoboth, favors the belief that she was his sister, though he might have manifested the same regard, had she been only the sister of his wife. We may however see among the group of pious and brave settlers, not only the godly man who is their religious teacher, but also the form of one, whose sable garments tell us, she is a "Widow." The vision passes quickly before us, and is lost to our sight, awakening sympathy and interest for the woman, who, bereft of the companion of her youth, became a pioneer in founding the church and colony at Rehoboth. She was buried no doubt, in the ancient place of graves in Seekonk, where many of the fathers repose, but no stone marks the spot.

Philip Walker, afterward Deacon, and whose name first appears in 1653, to whom lands were assigned in 1658, and of whom the record commences, soon after her's ceases, was her son. In the description of his lands in the Proprietors' Records, 48th p., he says, "100 pound commons that was Thos. Pitts', 100 that was the Governor's, half a hundred that was my mother's." It is evident therefore that he was the son of "Widow Walker," for had his "mother" not been a widow, the lands would have been described as those of his father, and furthermore, there was no other person of the name in the Rehoboth Company, who could sustain this relation to him.

James Walker appears in the list of those in 1643 giving in the value of their estates. His name is next to that of the "Widow," and the amount is £50, but it is subjoined that his share is "now John ffitches." He however forfeited his lots to the town in 1644, in accordance with an order enacted by the proprietors in 1643, that those who did not fence their lands, or remove there with their families, should forfeit their lots. His name however, is mentioned in one division of lands afterward, viz., that of 1645. It is probable however, that he never removed to Rehoboth, but concluded to remain in Taunton. Mr. John Browne, whose lots were forfeited at the same date with James Walker's, lived in Taunton at the time, and was his "cousin," (uncle.) Thus connected with the "Widow" and Mr. Browne, who was also one of the original Proprietors of Rehoboth, having been the agent of the company, while in Weymouth, and appointed by the Court at Plymouth, to make the purchase of Asameeum the Indian Chief, James Walker very naturally became associated with the settlement. Accordingly neither their names nor that of Mr. Browne is found in the list of the company that went from Weymouth. The strongest reason, however, for concluding he was of "Widow Walker's" family, is found in the fact that when Deacon Philip died in 1679, James was one of the appraisers of his estate. When it is remembered that there was no James Walker in R., at that time, that Rehoboth and Taunton townships were contiguous, and moreover, that James was about 60 years of age, it is beyond a reasonable doubt that he was not only nearly related to Philip, but was his brother, and accordingly was the son of "Widow Walker."

If we may judge of her worth from the virtues of her sons, and infer that they inherited the spirit and piety of their Pilgrim mother, and that her fidelity entitled her to use the language of the Roman matron respecting the Gracchi, "These are my jewels," then was she a compeer worthy to be associated with the pious and distinguished Mr. Newman and the useful Mr. Browne, leaders in the Rehoboth settlement.

And as "the glory of the fathers is their children," her name is not unhonored, and her character and worth not without their monument.

It is upon this evidence, which, though fragmentary and circumstantial, is nevertheless conclusive, that is placed at the head of the Taunton Family, and in respect to them, as well as the more numerous and widely scattered family of Rehoboth, must be honored as

"WIDOW WALKER"

"THE MOTHER OF US ALL."

CHILDREN OF WIDOW WALKER[1] [1] of Rehoboth.

2. JAMES WALKER,[2] (5)

OF TAUNTON, MASS.

SON of ——— Walker and his wife, ——— afterward called "Widow Walker" of Rehoboth, was born in England in 1619 or '20. All efforts to discover his birthplace, and learn from which branch of the numerous race of Walkers he sprung, have proved fruitless. Nor can the time of his emigration to this country, be determined with absolute certainty. The following fact from "Gleanings for New England History by Hon. James Savage, from a Manuscript vol. at the Augmentation office," England, which are published in the Collections of the Mass. Historical Society, 8th vol., 3d series, will at least furnish ground for a conjecture, if not, in connection with contemporaneous facts, for a conclusion, which leaves no room for a reasonable doubt. The record is thus:

Imbarqud Apr. 15. In Elizabeth, de London,
Master Wm. Stagg versus New England,
Richard Walker, 24
William Walker, 15

and 3 others of different names; these persons having taken the oath of allegiance and supremacy before Sir Wm. Whitmore and Sir Nicholas Ranton.

In another paragraph on the same page, it is added:

15 Apr. In the Elizabeth, de London,
Master Wm. Stagg vs. New England,
James Walker, 15 yrs.
Sarra Walker, 17 yrs. servants* to Jo. Browne, a Baker and to 1 Wm. Brasey, linen draper in Cheapside, London, per certificate of their conformity.

*Mr. Savage says it is probable that some of those persons who entered as servants assumed this title to escape the vigilance of the pursuivants.

On a following page is added:

17th Apr. for New England in Elizabeth,
Wm. Stagg, master, 28 more, among whom
Jo. Browne, 40 yrs.

That this was the James Walker who settled at Taunton is confirmed by the following facts:

In all the town histories of the Plymouth and Massachusetts Colonies, and the Probate Records, which have been thoroughly examined, there is no trace of any other James Walker, previous to the year 1655.† It is the single instance of the name. And in respect to his birth and age, there is only a variation of one year, between the statement just given, and the age and date upon the grave stone still standing in the Walker Burial Place in South Taunton. And this is a slight discrepancy, and may have arisen from a mistake in the original English record, or in Mr. Savage's transcription of it, or which is more probable still, from an error in the inscription upon the grave stone, either by the failure in memory of those who reared it, (perhaps at some considerable time after his death) or by the mistake of the stone cutter in putting 73 for his age instead of 72. Grave stones are proverbially uncertain in respect to dates. It is no infrequent thing to find such variations.

Besides this, William was in Hingham in 1636, the year after their embarkation from London, and had a lot assigned him, and his name is in the list of the inhabitants and proprietors of that year. And it is a well known fact, that many of the first settlers of Taunton were from Hingham and Scituate. And it is not improbable, that the ship Elizabeth landed her passengers at H. or somewhere on the South Shore.

Richard Walker was the son of Richard of Lynn or Saugus, who came before him. His age at his death, concurs with his age given in Mr. Savage's Gleanings, and with his birth in 1611, as given by Lewis in Hist. of Lynn, published before Mr. Savage made his researches in England. But another fact, which contributes to change what otherwise might be a conjecture, into a firm conviction, is, that James Walker was the brother-in-law* of John Tisdill, and

* Mr. John Browne of Rehoboth Nov. 23d, 1655 gave to "his cousin (nephew?) John Tisdill, dwelling house bought of Goodman, &c., &c. and house he lived in at Taunton, to John Tisdill and his cousin (nephew) James Walker, John Tisdill's brother-in-law." Plym. Reg. Deeds, 3d vol., 181 p.

† A James Walker appeared in Chelmsford in 1659.

Digitized by Google

as it is known that James Walker married Elizabeth Philips, this relationship could have been, only by John Tisdill's marriage with James Walker's sister. And as John Tisdill's wife was named Sarah, and James Walker, his brother-in-law, had a sister Sarah Walker, it is unquestionable, that Mrs. Tisdill was the "Sarra Walker 17 yrs. of the Elizabeth from London," and that we have in Mr. Savage's Gleanings an account of the Embarkation of the Taunton and Hingham (afterward Eastham) Walkers.

If it be said that there is nothing about Widow and Philip Walker in these Gleanings, it may be answered, that possibly she and the younger son, as Philip was, may have come afterward, for it was not unusual then, any more than now, for members of the same family to come at different times, and the fact of Richard of Lynn, though only a young man, coming several years after his father, corroborates the theory. The obvious conclusion then, in respect to the relationship existing between the four is, that James and Sarra were brother and sister, and that they were all near kindred; perhaps the two mentioned first, Richard and William, were cousins of the others, and also of each other. Emigrants at the same time and in the same ship, it is probable that they came from the same district in England. Richard went to Lynn where his father had settled, William to Eastham, and James and Sarra to Taunton, with Mr. John Browne, their guardian and uncle.

JAMES first appears in Taunton in 1643; his name being included in the list of those in T. between the age of 16 and 60 able to bear arms.* He also gave in the value of his estate with the first settlers of Rehoboth in 1643, for a share in the division of lands. But the fact that the next year, his lands were forfeited to the town, together with Mr. John Browne's, then of Taunton, his cousin, (or if as used anciently his uncle,) either because he did not according to a previous order fence them, or did not remove there, (the latter probably,) will account for his early disappearance from the list of the inhabitants and proprietors of Rehoboth. Only one other notice of the said James of Rehoboth is found, viz: in the division of land, made in the year 1645. The absence of his name, therefore, is explained most naturally by the supposition, that he never became a settler there, and not that there was a different James from the one in Taunton, who may have died in 1645 or just after.

Digitized by Google

And as James Walker was one of the appraisers of the estate of Philip Walker of Rehoboth, in 1679, and there was no James at that period in R., it is reasonable to infer that James of Taunton, was the James mentioned in the first Rehoboth divisions of land, and surviving Philip, helped appraise his estate. His mother and Mr. John Browne his uncle being interested in the enterprise, he doubtless contemplated settling there, yet concluded to remain in T. where he became very useful and highly honored. (See sketch of Widow Walker.) As he was married just at this time, to Miss Philips of T., we may guess that love had stronger influence than lands, and over-ruled his purpose to settle in Rehoboth, securing his active services and wise counsels through a long life, to the town of Taunton. It deserves to be noticed in this connection, as showing the intercourse between the families of the two towns, that James Walker Jr., married Bathsheba, daughter of Gilbert Brooks of Rehoboth, a pious, worthy and somewhat prominent man.

There is also another fact to corroborate this theory. In Dec. 1644, "It was ordered (in Rehoboth) that no man's lands be recorded till he be an inhabitant among us," or receive a certificate, that lands are butted and bounded, and in the allotments ordered to be recorded in March 28, 1645, his name does not appear with Widow Walker's. Though it is true that in April following, he is mentioned as one of those who drew lots for lands on the Great Plain, there is not a single record of his lands in the Proprietors' Books, and hence it is an inevitable conclusion, that he did not become an inhabitant of Rehoboth. Had he done so, there would have been a record of the boundaries of the lands which fell to him in the division, and then the record of the transfer. There was a James Walker who drew lots in the divisions of 1643 and 5, and who yet had no lands recorded and described. There was, at that time, a James Walker in Taunton, the adjoining town, at that time, and there is no trace of another any where in New England.

It would be a remarkable coincidence, were there another James so nearly of the same age, who had a sister Sarah, a guardian or patron, John Browne, (that was his uncle also,) and until such a James has been found, with whose life these circumstances will concur, it may be claimed, that we have the record of the English origin and advent to this country, of the first male ancestor of the Taunton Walkers.*

* This proof has been given in detail because of an effort to make another use of this portion of Mr. Savage's Gleanings. See Gen. Reg. vol. 9, p. 219.

James Walker was propounded to take up his freedom 6th June, 1649, and admitted a freeman 4th June, 1650. He married Elizabeth Philips, daughter of William Philips and wife Elizabeth (Parker,) sister of William and John Parker, ancient and leading men of Taunton. She died Aug. 14th, 1678, aged 59, (according to grave stone,) July 8th, (Prop. Rec.) and July 30th, (Plymouth Rec.)* They had five children who survived them, viz: James, Peter, Eleazer, Hester, and Deborah. Probably there were others who died early, as, in 1659, before the birth of Deborah, he had "eight heads" in his family. He married 2d, Sarah Rew, Nov. 4th, 1678, widow of Edward Rew, one of the ancient settlers and proprietors of T., who died July 16th, 1678. She was a daughter of John Richmond of Taunton. James Walker died Feb. 15th, 1691, aged 73, which date regarded as 1691–2, makes his age in 1635, 16 instead of 15, as given in Savage's Gleanings.† He and his w. Elizabeth were buried in the Walker grave yard on the bank of the Taunton River, in the South part of the town. Her grave stone has an earlier date by 8 years than any in the town. He lived near the ancient meeting house and on the "highway that goeth from James Walker Sen., to the Great Plain on the northerly end." He was an extensive landholder and a partner in the Iron Works and the Saw Mill.‡

The following are the notices of him in the ancient records. In Oct. 4th, 1648, Jas. Walker of Taunton, informing against William

* This is a striking illustration of conflict in authorities in respect to a single date.

† This, however, is a slight discrepancy and does not invalidate the conclusion that he was the same who came in the Elizabeth in 1635.

‡ There is an ancient deed by James Walker Sen., that has been thought worthy of being framed and preserved in the Bristol Reg. of Deeds, Taunton. By whom and when this distinction was given is unknown. It is dated Sept. 11th, 1688, and the following is a copy of all that is essential.

"To all Christian People, before whom these presents shall come, James Walker Senior of Taunton, sendeth Greeting. Know ye that the said James Walker for and in consideration of the loue he beareth unto his son, Petter Walker of Taunton, abouesaid, doeth by this deed of guift vnto his said son, Petter Walker, freely and fully guie, make over from me, the said James Walker, my heirs and executors and assignes, to him, my abouesaid son, Petter Walker, and to his heirs, successors and assignes for euer, these particular parcels of Land following, lying, scittuate and being within the Townshipt of Taunton aforesaid.

Homer seems to have nodded here. The good man fell into sin if we may judge from the record, and like Moses, "spake unadvisedly with his lips!"*

This "son Petter Walker," thus owned lands and lived in that section of the town lying in the angle formed by the Taunton Great and the Three Mile rivers. There his descendants have lived till the present time.

* Perhaps, however, judgment was rendered against him in this instance on the principle that "the greater the truth, the greater the libel." This William Hailstone was far from blameless He was fined £15 for breach of contract with Jonathan Briggs, and 20 shillings for telling 2 lyes in a petition to General Court in 1656.

Apr. 7th, 1664. Willam Witherell acknowlidyeth to owe to our sou lord the Kinge, the sume of £20; Hezekiah Hore £10; Gyles Gilbert, £20; Gorg Watson, £10.

The cause of the bonds aboue written is, that wheras James Walker, being a p'tnor in the saw mill att Taunton, complained of great hurt done to the said saw mill, by som psons that came in the night in a fellonious manor and stole away seueral things, and did great spoile, and left a libellous paper behind them; and it being suspected that the aboue bounden Willam Witherell and Gyles Gilbert, were the psons, or some of them, that haue done the said mischiffe, they, the said Willam Witherell and Gyles Gilbert, being sumoned, appeered att Plymouth, before the Gou. and Captaine Southworth, on the day and yeare first aboue written, and being examined, it appeered that they were guilty in the aforesaid pticulars, and therfore the said majestrates saw cause to take the said bonds of them for their good behauior, &c.,, Court Orders, vol. 4th, 5, 6, & 7, pp.

May 3, 1664. Josepth Gray and Samuell Linkorn were arraigned for being ptenors in doeing great hurt to the saw mill att Taunton, &c., "and being examined about the pmises, owned that they were guilty therin" and were put under bonds, together with Gorg Watson and Thomas Leanard. Then follows this order of the Court.

Wheras, att this Court, the aboue bounden Josepth Gray and Samuell Linkorne, together with Georg Watson, complained of great wrong, sustained, not onely by them, but by the whole towne of Taunton, by James Walker, his neglecting, according to engagement, to leaue a sufficient passage for the herrings or alewiues to goe up in the river on which the saw mill standeth, the Court directeth an order to the constable of Taunton, to require him to signify vnto the said James Walker, that hee speedily take course, that a free passage bee left for the goeing up of the alewiues in the said river, whiles yett some pte of the season remaines of their goeing vpp.

8th June, 1664, Court ordered.

In reference to the complaint of sundry of the inhabitants of the towne of Taunton against James Walker and others, for the restraining of the alewiues from goeing vp according to there vsual manor, by reason of a saw mill on thire herring riuer, by which obstruction of the said fish, the said towne hath, and is in danger to suffer much damage, this Court hath ordered, that betwixt this date and the next season of the fishes goeing vp, they, the said owners of the mill, shall make or cause to a made, a free, full and sufficient passage for the goe-ing vp of the said fish, or otherwise vpon the further complaint of the towne, the Court will take an effectuall course that the same shall bee done.

Att this Court, Willam Witherell, Mr. Gyles Gilbert, Josephth Gray and Samuell Linkhorne were sentanced by the Court to pay each a fine of twenty shillings for an abuse done to a Saw Mill at Taunton, belonging to James Walker and others, by coming in the night and breaking downe some pte of the said mill, and found takeing away seuerall thinges from the same.

George Watson, Gyles Gilbert and William Witherley complained against James Walker, Robert Crossman, John Maycomber and Nicholas White, in an action of tresspass on the case, to the damage of an hundred pounds, for hindering the fish for haueing a convenient passage vp and downe the Mill River, att Taunton, by the worke about the saw mill, contrary to the inhabitants of the towne of Taunton, and contrary to the promise of the said James Walker, all of which hath bine great damage to the complainants and others.

Tried att Generall Court held att Plymouth, 31 Oct., 1666.

The jury find for the plaintiffes, that a sufficient passage be made by the defendants att the Mill River, att Taunton, for the fish where they vsually goe vp and downe, where the saw mill or dam now erected is an anoyance to the said fish, the expence of time, and the cost of the suite.*

In 1671 James Walker was fined £1 for breaking an order about a stray horse.

We pass now to more honorable notices.

In 1651, he was on the inquest respecting the death of William England, aged 10 years, seruant to Joseph Wilbor of Taunton. The next morning being the Lord's Day, hee with diuers others, sought on the river for him and found him not; but James Walker and Richard Burt passing vp the river, towards meeting, found the said William floating on the water, who made it known, and caused him to be taken vp. Col. Rec. vol. 2.

In 1663, Richard Williams, Walter Dean, James Wyatt and James Walker, made over land to Rev. Geo. Shove, minister of Taunton, house and land 10 acres, bounded &c.,——which they bought of Elizabeth Philips. This was given "for the use of the ministry."

* The people of Taunton have ever since been very ready to complain of any damage to "thire herring riuer," but in 200 years, manufacturing enterprise has conquered, and mill owners now, have less trouble than James Walker.

James Walker was one of a Com. "to lease out some of the lands of Leiftenant Wyatt, for the relieffe of Mistris Mary Wyatt, of Taunton, his widdow, and in great necessitie." 1678, 30 Oct.

In 1683–4, James Walker and John Richmond were the Com. in behalf of inhabitants of Taunton, to purchase a tract of land of the Indians.

He served as juryman, and on the Grand Inquest repeatedly. He was constable in 1652; surveyor, 1672; one of the "Celect men," 1666, 7, 8, 9, 70, 8, 9 and 80,—8 years.

He was elected deputy to the Plymouth Court, 16 years, viz.: 1654, 7, 8, 9, 60, 1, 3, 6, 7, 8, 9, 70, 1, 6, 7, 9.

He was a member of the Com. (composed of 10 of the leading citizens in the Colony,) to take the Treasurer's account in 1664, 7, 8 and 70.

He was a Member and Chairman of the Town "Councell of Warr," 1667, 75 & 8. These Councils were elected in time of war, and the most efficient men of the towns were appointed, as in Plymouth, the Gov. Capt. Bradford, in Rehoboth, Capt. Willett. He was also one of the "Councell of Warr," for Plymouth Colony, in 1658, 61, 71, 81, and associated with its most energetic and sagacious men. In 1681, the Council consisted of Capt. Nathaniel Thomas, Capt. Josiah Standish, Capt. Jonathan Sparrow, Lieut. Joseph Laythorpe, Lieut. Eph'm Morton, Lieut. John Thacher, Ensign Mark Eames, Cornet Rob't Studson, Sec'y Nath'l Morton, Mr. James Walker.

In the division of lands in 1659, his rate is £1, 5s., 7d., and 8 heads. Ninety six acres were assigned him.

He was also one of the committee of five, to revise town records of lands.

"In 1669, 51 acres over the great river, at head of the great Meadows, also 3 acres on this side, (that is West,) of river, little beyond Edward Rew's Saw pit," were assigned him. (Prop. Rec.)

In the Proprietor's Records, there is also a record of the names of the persons who gave lands to Capt. Batholomew Tipping, as remuneration in full, for the house and land he sold to Rev. Mr. Danforth, in 1687. It is as follows:

James Walker,	10 acres.
Peter Walker, (son of James,)	10 acres.

Then follow the names of 19 others, 15 of whom gave 5 acres each, one 6 acres, one 4, and two, 10 each.

In vol. 6th, 1st series of the Collections of the Mass. Historical Society, there is allusion to a letter of James Walker, of Taunton, dated Jan. 1676, written to Gov. Winslow, (in reply to one of his,) giving an account of the suffering and the loss of life by Indian depredations, in Philip's War, and also the names of the sufferers.

This letter is lost; and it is a loss greatly to be deplored, as such a letter from an intelligent observer, would give us a vivid conception of those perilous and barbarous times, when our ancestors, few, and grouped in small and scattered settlements in the wilderness, had to struggle with the banded natives, bent on the extermination of the pale faces from the land, they thought their own heritage, guided and inspired too, by the patriotism and bravery of the able and renowned chieftain, King Philip.

Even the list of those who fell or suffered, would be invaluable now, and furnish a thrilling chapter in the domestic and social history of the early colonists—a tearful record of graves and griefs, of fortitude and faith, of terror and triumph.*

We are more fortunate however, in respect to a letter he wrote to Gov. Prince, for though the original may be lost, we have its contents published, in the 6th vol. of Mass. Hist. Col. 197th p. The letter is as follows:

Much Honored Sir:

After my humble respects presented to you, these are to acquaint you with Philip's answer to your letter. My sons being visited with the ague, forced me to procure brother Harvey† to go over to cousin James Browne with the letter, who sent for Mr. Williams to interpret. Mr. Williams, not being well, came not till afterward; yet cousin James and brother Harvey went down to Mount Hope; and the dance being broken up, Philip, and the most of his chief men, were much in drink; only Acumponin and Tom Sancsink were sober; so that Philip could not give them any answer. Only there passed some words betwixt Philip and cousin James, and Philip struck off cousin James Browne's hat. The day following, they went again to Philip, and Mr. Williams with them. The letter being read, and Philip caused fully to understand it, they could get no positive answer about Philip's coming to Plymouth, because Mr. Eliot had sent for him to Boston, and he looked for another messenger that day; which messenger they met about 2 miles from Philip's house; which messenger told them that his message was to desire Philip to be at Punkapoge, the last day of this week, and at Boston, the Tuesday following. Philip and Tom exclaimed much against Sawsiman, for reporting that any of the Narragansett sachems were there; Not further to trouble you, but rest, desiring the good Lord to be with you, and guide you, in all your weighty affairs.

Yours to serve,

JAMES WALKER.

Taunton, Sept. 1, 1671.

*King Philip's summer residence was in Taunton, (now Raynham,) near the Iron Works.

† Was he a "brother" by marriage, or only a "brother" in the church? Perhaps there was another and younger sister, than Sarah, who came with the "Widow" and Philip. The mention of "cousin James Browne," in connection with "brother Harvey," favors this supposition, but Mr. John Browne's remembrance of James and Sarah only, in the gift of his house in Taunton, suggests a doubt, which is strengthened by the record, "Wm. Harvey m. Joane Hucker of Taunton, April 2, 1639." May not "Hucker" be a clerical error for Walker?

Digitized by Google

"Yours to serve," the unique form with which he concludes his letter to Gov. Prince, is singularly appropriate and in keeping with his life. When a youth of 15 years, he was "servant to John Browne." In mature manhood, he was the "servant" of the Colony, employed in various civil offices and trusts, through a long series of years.

He had no military title, no hereditary arms, but the numerous services assigned him, and the positions of responsibility and confidence which he filled, justify us in awarding him the title of "servant of the church" and the State.

From the records now given, we conceive of him as a man of more than ordinary intelligence, judicious in counsel, energetic in action, steadfast in integrity, sagacious, public spirited, benevolent and alive to the secular and religious prosperity of the Colony. Surpassed by none of the town in his contributions for the ministry, and in the number and continuance of civil trusts, he needed no heraldic distinctions, and he transmitted none. Worthy of remembrance and honor by those of his name and lineage, yet he is an honor to them, only as they strive to emulate his usefulness, and reproduce his virtues and his piety.

3. SARAH WALKER,[2]

Of Taunton, Mass.

Born in England in 1618, died Dec. 1676. She married John Tisdall, of Duxbury.

It is recorded that John Tisdall entered against Stephen Hopkins, Assistant of the Gov't, an action for Battery, by which he was dangerously wounded. 1636. S. H. was fined £5 and costs. Also, "John Tisdall, upon the good report of him and of his good carryage, is allowed to keepe house and plant for himself, provided he so continue his carryage still. 1638." Is it not probable that he had been recently married?

He did not altogether "continue his carryage," for Dec. 6, 1653, he was fined 20 shil., for "unfaithfulness in prizing and exchanging a cow," of Mrs. Bryant's. (Plym. Col. Rec. vol. 3, 42d p.)

He settled first in Duxbury, about 1636, and removed to Taunton, before Dec. 6, 1653. He was constable in T. 1659, one of the proprietors of Taunton No. Purchase 1668, Selectman and Deputy to Plym. Court 1774. Besides lands in Taunton, he owned a farm near Assonet. He took an active part in the affairs of the town, and was murdered by the Indians, June 27, 1675. In'y, £150. Nothing is known of his origin, nor of the date of his arrival in the Old Colony. He has not had very numerous descendants, yet all the Tisdalls, of American birth, are of his lineage. The professional men among his descendants have been Elkanah, a lawyer, and Nathan, 1732—1787, called "Old Master Tisdale," the eminent classical teacher of the time, by whom, during about 40 years, a large number of the distinguished men of the country were instructed. (See his Epitaph, Gen. Reg. 1858, 62d p.) Both of Lebanon, Ct. Dr. Tisdall, of Norwich, Ct., and Rev. James, lately of Shutesbury, (son of James, of West Taunton.) Samuel T., Esq., an intelligent and successful merchant in N. Y. City, 7th generation from John, has a genealogy of the Tisdalls in manuscript.

THIRD GENERATION.

CHILDREN OF JAMES WALKER,[2] [2] OF TAUNTON.

5. I. JAMES,[3] (10) b. 1645–6, d. June 22, 1718, ae. 72 yrs.

He m. Dec. 23, 1673, Bathsheba Brooks, dau. of Gilbert, of Rehoboth. She was b. 1655, and d. Feb. 24, 1738, in 85th yr. (Ins.) Will was proved, April, 17, 1739. He was constable in T. in 1689, and admitted to freedom in 1689. He had 50 acres of land laid out for him, near Wm. Hacks' line. The lot began at So. Purchase line, and run north, 2 points. (Prop. Rec.)

In 1697, there was a graunt to him of "50 acres on the west syde of Three Mile river, below the brook that runs into it, below John Hodges' lot."

He lived at the Weir, in Taunton, where Col. Israel Dean, late of T., lived, and where the road from the Weir, to Dighton, leaves the river and turns west, towards the Presbrey brook.

It is conjectured, that the following graunt refers to this James, because the father would have been called Mr. James Walker.

"Libertie is graunted by the Court, vnto Jaines Walker, of Taunton, to keep an ordinary att Taunton, and for that end, that hee be prouided of all necessaries for that purpose, and that he keep good order in his house, that, soe no damage may acrew vnto any, respecting the pmises." 1679, Plym. Col. Rec. vol. 6, 15th p.

In his will, proved Sept. 1, 1718, bequests are made to wife, 6 sons and 5 daus. These indicate the places where the sons lived, viz.: "To James, eldest son, 50 acres, where he lives. To 2d son, Nathan, land in Taunton, So. Purchase. To 3d son, David, 2 lower lotts, in Dighton, where he now dwells. To 4th son, Nehemiah, my new dwelling house, in T., and my home lott, and barn thereon, and my lott lying by Jas. Burt's, in T., and my land over the Creek,— and 50 acres lying on the three mile river, at a place called the narrow passage. To 5th son, Josiah, 3 upper lotts, in Dighton."

6. II. PETER,[3] (21) b. 1649, d. April 4, 1711, ae. 60. (Ins.) [62 ?]

He m. Hannah, who d. Jan. 15, 1704, ae. 44 yrs. (Ins.) Nothing more is known of her. He was an iron dealer, in company with Hon. James Philips. He was appointed with Joseph and Samuel Richmond, to lay out "the highway from Bayting Brook, to Assonet."

His will proved July 2, 1711, gives names of 3 sons and 3 daus. He made a bequest, also, "to Thomas Elyot, who did live with me 6 yrs.," viz.: "6 acres joining the land of my brother James, where said Elyot now dwelleth," (See No. 16.) His Inventory £751, includes "homestead, with housing, orchard, with little island joining, to Nicholas Stephen's, his mill, with all the land belonging to the farm, being 400 acres." This "little island" is in the centre of No. Dighton village, and is now the site of an old foundry. There were his Iron Works, which in later years went by the name of Baylies' Forge, and were on the site of the present Paper mill. By a "deed of guift," in 1688, from James Walker, Sen., "to his son Petter Walker," and other grants, he became an extensive land holder, in the Southern part of Taunton, between and on the Taunton Great and Three Mile rivers, and especially on the latter, at what is now the North Dighton village. In the Proprietors' Rec. we find that Peter Walker had "84 acres laid out near James Walker and Wm. Hack, near the lower powers on the country road to Three Mile river." There was also a grant in 1697, to Peter, of "40 acres, in the low country, between his lands and Jas. Walker's." He also owned land near the meeting house, and on the Mill river, near where his father lived. But his homestead was in the South part of the town, and his dwelling, remodelled 60 yrs. ago, is the 1st house north of Three Mile River, on the road from Taunton to Dighton Four Corners. A portion of his estate, half a mile north has been held by him, and his descendants 175 yrs., and is now owned and occupied by Edward Walker, [See No. 233,] and there is scarcely room for a doubt, that this is a part of the grants, to James, Sen., which, in this section of the town, became almost wholly, the portion of his "son Petter." We are sure, that it was Peter's, either by grant to him, or by inheritance, and as it included when it was bequeathed to his sons, in 1711, the ancient cemetery of the Walker Family and kindred, where his mother and father were buried, in 1678 & 91, we feel confident, it was a part of the lands of James Walker, Sen., and by transmission in the name over 200 years, is the ancestral Farm of the family.

"This is to declare, that my father-in-law, James Walker, gave me the money, that bought the land mentioned in the deed, for which I humbly thank him," Geo. Gooding.

He was a man of affluence for the time, and prominent in the affairs of the town. His death was sad and untimely. In digging a well he came to a rock. Thinking that heat would break it, he built a fire upon the rock. Leaving this to burn while he was taking dinner, he returned, and descended the well to see the condition and effect of the fire. But a little before reaching the bottom, he fell, and two others following to rescue him, fell upon him. Water was then poured into the well, and a fourth descended with a rope fastened to him. This he then fastened to the last who fell, and he was taken out, and in this way all were taken from the well. Mr. Walker being the first who fell, was the last taken out, and was then found to be dead. This occurred about a month after his marriage. After his death a son was born, who was named James, in honor of his father, and removed to New York City.

But possessing great mechanical ingenuity, he made spinning wheels for both wool and flax, was an excellent rake maker, and supplied the inhabitants in the new settlements, with various useful articles, such as rakes, chests, drawers, &c. There was scarcely an article that he could not make. He was also remarkably expert with a gun, seldom missing his mark, whether the distance were long or short, and so making havoc among the bears and wolves. He was of a bold, fearless spirit, of fine physical proportions, of noble appearance, and when 87 yrs. of age, walked as erect as men usually do at 30. "I remember" says a grand son, "seeing him run to overtake a team, and with considerable rapidity in his 88th yr." He had 4 chil. The following Obituary, published in the Griffin papers, is no unmerited tribute:—

Departed this life, at her residence in Pike County, Georgia, June 18th, 1859, in the 61st year of her age, Mrs. Juliana Eppinger, wife of Hon. James Eppinger, and daughter of the late Col. Wm. Throop, of Bristol, R. I.

In the decease of Mrs. Eppinger, society has lost one of the brightest monitors, to an intellectual and spiritual life. Endowed with remarkable grasp of intellect, her early education was thorough in philological studies, and elegant female accomplishments, while her unceasing thirst for knowledge, added to her attainments, all modern progression in science and literature. Gifted with a retentive memory, and uncommon fluency of diction, it was ever a pleasure to her, to communicate to others, from her ample intellectual stores, in language, unstudied, elegant and appropriate.

Noble and pure minded, her thoughts dwelt only on such subjects as refined human nature. Possessed of warm social instincts, her ready sympathy extended to all with whom she held intercourse, while her society and conversation elevated all around her.

Equally remarkable with her extensive mental attainments, was the extraordinary zeal with which she performed all domestic duties. Energetic and untiring, a faithful wife, a devoted mother, a warm friend, to her servants indulgent and affectionate to an extreme degree, none save those within her immediate circle, could realize her diligence in all that could contribute to the comfort and happiness of those around her, while her unselfish nature ever led her to assume every burden, to relieve others.

Unbounded in her benevolence of heart, she ever considered herself as but a stewardess of the gifts of fortune. Self-denying, in all personal gratification, her ready aid through life was ever extended to the poor and needy. None, save the almoners and recipients of her bounty knew of the countless benefits her charity ever extended; her heart responded to the claim of those less favored to a share of all that she possessed.

Comparing her attainments with the vast field of knowledge in Science and Art, and her spiritual life with the one model, she judged herself with a humility of self appreciation, few could comprehend, who knew her many and diverse gifts.

In her intense love of Nature, her heart breathed forth a constant hymn of gratitude to the Great Author of the Universe. Her appreciation of all that was beautiful, was one of her highest sources of enjoyment, and brightened each moment of her life, departing only with her last breath.

In early life, she dedicated herself to God's service, and having thus diligently walked in His commandments, her last moments were unobscured by a single shadow; no fear, no doubt, or regret visited her beatified soul. Joy and Love and Peace ineffable, filled her heart to overflowing. In the promises of Holy Writ, in the eloquent language of all her familiar poets, and in her own flowing diction, her lips breathed unceasingly, comfort to those to be soon bereaved; and without pain or struggle, her soul passed from peace on earth, to "life in Christ unchangeable."

"No strength of our own,
Or goodness we claim,
But since we have known
The Savior's great name,
In this our strong tower,
For safety we hide,
The Lord is our power,
The Lord will provide.

stoop to a mean thing, nor suffer his rights to be invaded. He and his wife united with the Cong'l ch. about 1800. Few persons become so familiar with the Scriptures as he was. (The author has never known any one.) The Bible, was for years his library, his study, and the whole seemed to be treasured in his memory, so that in his old age, he was exceedingly entertaining and instructive, in his recital of the history of the Old, and his exposition of the doctrines of the New Testament. It was a beautiful sight, the venerable old man, with his long white locks, and his face glowing with the inspiration of his favorite Book and theme.

He d., not by disease, but of old age. Both he and wife are buried in the orchard, in the rear of his house, he having selected 20 yrs. ago, a family burial place on the ancestral homestead.*

His fitting epitaph is—

> The hoary head is a crown of glory,
> When found in the way of righteousness.

She was a very domestic and amiable woman, and though of slender constitution, was patient, and resolute. Her epitaph is a just estimate of her character—

> Behold the Christian's grave; she walked with God,
> In the same path the dear Redeemer trod;
> She loved the church, and prayed for its increase,
> Lived much beloved, and died in perfect peace.

SEVENTH GENERATION.

CHIL. OF LIEUT. ELIAKIM WALKER,[6] [61] OF TAUNTON.

121. I. JAMES,[7] d. June 21, 1831, in 71st yr.

He m. Mary, dau. of Elkanah Tisdale. She d. April 30, 1851, in 89th yr. No chil. Res. Taunton, (Rocky Woods,) on the farm now owned by Geo. Walker, Esq. (See No. 144.) He gave $500 to the 1st Cong'l Ch., for the building of a new Meeting house, in 1825. His widow gave the organ to the society. Both m. ch. He possessed unusual intelligence, and vigor of mind, and was very orthodox in religious opinion. Says Rev. A. Cobb, his pastor many years, "he knew Jonathan Edwards from beginning to end."

*It was not then known, that the Cemetery on the bank of the Taunton river, is the Family Burial Place of the Walkers. The compiler has since discovered, that their oldest ancestor and his wife were buried there, (1678 and 1692,) and that it is almost wholly occupied by his descendants, and was deeded for that purpose, by Edward Walker, (See Nos. 2 and 22.) Had this been known, there would, undoubtedly, have been no departure from the custom of 150 yrs., nor from the purpose of their kinsman, the grantor, "to all relations that I have, or shall have, to lye for a burying place, forever," where they "may bury their dead."

He gave $1000, in 1825, towards the erection of the church edifice of the 1st Society, in Taunton. He was a man of superior excellence of character, and of uncommon understanding. Res. T., (Rocky Woods,) on the homestead now occupied by his grandson, Mr. Gulliver. In'y $10,245. He was in Capt. Blake's Co., and went to Tiverton, Aug. 2, 1780, and also served in Capt. Haskin's Co., and Col. Dean's Regiment.

He was one of the petitioners to the Gen. Court, respecting the religious society, in T., in 1790. He was active in the movement in 1792, which separated the ancient church from the Town Parish, and organized a new society in the west part of the town. Their first meeting was held in Dea. Isaac Tubbs' barn. The cause of the separation was the attempt to settle Mr. John Foster, over the old Society. The love of sound doctrine lead these separatists, who comprised all the church excepting 4 persons, to make these sacrifices. Active in the movement, he was willing to devote his money to its maintenance. He is entitled to gratitude for his christian patriotism, on the principle, that "he loveth our nation, for he hath built us a synagogue."

"Mr. W. was a slow, but patient and thorough scholar. In his youth, he was sedate, amiable, and beloved by all in his native place."

"It is related that several persons became at one time somewhat uneasy, under Mr. W.'s ministry, and agitated the subject of his dismission. He promptly responded to the suggestion, and a council was invited to consider the question. An anxious people assembled to await the result. The Moderator opened the Session with a prayer, of peculiar fervor and earnestness, especially praying for the movers of so responsible a step as severing the pastoral relation. The spirit of the prayer awakened new thoughts and feelings in the assembly. At its close, one of the chief agitators requested a delay of the proceedings, and moved before the church, are consideration of the matter to be presented to the council: which motion was unanimously carried. The council, instead of dismissing the pastor, were invited to stay, and assist him in gathering in the fruits of a most extensive and precious revival, of which God's answer to that prayer was the beginning. The question of his dismission was never afterwards agitated."

In an Obituary in the "Cortland Repository," Homer, N. Y., June 9, 1820, his character, ministry and last days, received the following tribute:—

"In his removal, his bereaved family have lost an amiable and affectionate husband and father, the church and people of H. have lost a faithful and beloved pastor, and the public a real and worthy friend. Mr. W. possessed an assemblage of amiable qualities. He was a man of real politeness and good breeding, frank, mild, and hospitable. His affection for his family appeared sincere and ardent, and he participated largely in the pleasures of domestic life. His house was a habitation of friendship and peace, open to receive his friends and acquaintances with the greatest cordiality. His mind was formed for society, and he possessed a talent for rendering himself agreeable to those who were favored with his company.

As a Christian, he was diligent and exemplary. Though he was seldom carried out in high religious transports, yet he appeared to maintain a steady and solid hope in Christ, and an habitual peace in believing. He was a "lover of good men, sober, just, holy and temperate," in such a degree as rendered him a real ornament to the religion he professed. He was of a remarkably pacific disposition and excelled in the exercise of meekness, forbearance, and good will towards those who differed from him in religious opinion. Though his own sentiments were settled and firm, he was not forward to denounce those who thought differently from him. He evidently succeeded in an eminent degree in suppressing those envious and malignant feelings which are too apt to be indulged towards other denominations.

As a Minister, he set an example of prudence, patience and fidelity. He was a firm advocate for the doctrines of grace. He preached them plainly; and cheerfully and decidedly bore testimony in their favor on his dying bed. He was a friend to revivals of religion by the efficacious influences of the Holy Spirit, and with these the people of his charge have been peculiarly blessed. No less than three general revivals were experienced in the congregation during his pastoral connection with them. The following summary will exhibit the state of the church, at the commencement and close of his ministry:

The whole number of communicants in the Ch. at the time of his settlement, was 99. He received into membership during his pastorate of 10½ yrs., 468; dismissed, 88; lost by death, 48; excommunicated, 4; and left a membership of 427. He baptized 108 adults, 563 infants—whole number, 671.

We record this to the honor of Divine Grace; and also for the purpose of illustrating the ministerial character and usefulness of the deceased. These things appear to contain a Divine testimony in his favor, as an approved herald of Redeeming grace.

He was not so much a man of display as of real good sense and merit. His discourses were plain, instructive and practical, calculated to edify the pious mind, and to alarm the sinner. The spiritual interests of his congregation, appeared to lie near his heart, and he was ready to spend and be spent in their service.

During the revival, the winter past, he was exceedingly laborious, in preaching, attending conferences, and visiting from house to house. He appeared to spare no pains by day or night which were necessary for the good of his flock. His last public performance was at a conference meeting, in the centre of the parish. At the close of this meeting he informed individuals that he was much indisposed, and expressed his belief that he was going to be sick. He was seized with a violent fever, and a local affection in the left side of the chest, attended with a cough, which could not be removed by the most anxious and spirited efforts of physicians. His case soon became dangerous, and at length extinguished all hope of his recovery. The period from the commencement of his sickness to his decease, was about 7 weeks. The first part of this time, he manifested a considerable anxiety to recover, especially for the sake of his family. But for 3 or 4 weeks before his death he became much resigned to the thought of his departure, and spoke upon the subject with great freedom and composure. He was able to resign his wife and children into the hands of God, together with his congregation and friends, and to wait with cheerfulness and submission for his Master's call. His religious views and affections, though not of so ravishing a description as are sometimes manifested, were clear, rational and soul-satisfying. It is not saying too much, to affirm that he appeared and conversed like a christian. The hope which he had indulged for many years, now increased and brightened, and the grounds of this hope appeared to be truly scriptural. He had many happy hours, so that his "sick bed," to use his own words, "was like a bed of roses." He seemed evidently to enjoy a good degree of divine consolation and support. With solemn composure he arranged his temporal concerns, and set his house in order. He appeared confident that his time to die had come, and spoke freely to the numerous and anxious visitants, as one that was just about to appear in the presence of his Judge. He expressed great affection for his people, which was reciprocated by great numbers who came to his house. He was anxious to say something, either by way of instruction, counsel or warning, to every one who came in.

He exemplified the religion of his Savior in exercising a tender and forgiving spirit, towards such as had formerly been his opposers, and in expressing an anxious desire to see every one of them, and if possible, to have everything removed out of the way, so that he could die in peace with all men. No revenge, malice or envy, seemed to have a place in his heart. But on the contrary, his bosom glowed with forgiveness, kindness and love.

Near the last stage of his sickness, he was so much afflicted with an accumulation upon his lungs, that he was obviously in danger of suffocation. At one time, a few days previous to his death, he observed to his attendants, "It is best to call the people into the room, for I am so much distressed for breath that I can not live but a short time." He was asked if he could say, "Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly," "O, yes," he replied, "Lord Jesus, come quickly, thou Savior of sinners. Thou knowest that I have been a great sinner. My hope is in Thee. Thou Savior of sinners, take me to Thyself;" and folding his arms together he said, "Fold me in Thine arms, O, Divine Savior. I am about to leave my friends in this world, O, Savior of sinners, take me to Thyself. Thou knowest that I have given myself to Thee, time after time. Have not I done it without reserve? O, Lord, Thou knowest, Thou knowest, whether I have deceived myself." He was asked if he could not put his confidence in God. "O, yes," he said, "my confidence is strong in the Lord. Oh! my friends, I am just going into Eternity, how important to be always ready. I am going my friends, to sing the song of Moses, and the Lamb forever, and ever, and ever, and ever." He afterwards revived, and said it had been his earnest desire that he might not die by suffocation, but calm, composed and calling on God, as Stephen did, to receive his spirit. He was asked if he could not say "Father, not my will but thine be done." "O, yes," said he, "Father, not my will but Thine be done. If it be for Thy glory that I should die in this manner, Thy will be done. I go at Thy bidding." He did not finally suffocate. He lived about 3 days, and while his reason continued, made many interesting remarks, and the last words which he was heard to articulate, were, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit."

In short, his whole conversation and deportment were such as to furnish the most satisfactory evidence, that he was what he professed, and that he was prepared for the exchange of wolrds. Some days previous to his decease he said that it would be very desirable to depart on the Lord's day. His desire in this respect was granted.

His funeral was attended on the 6th inst., by a concourse of more than 2000 people assembled to pay their last tribute of respect to departed worth.

Eleven of the neighboring clergy were present to participate in the affecting solemnities of the day. An interesting and instructive discourse was delivered by Rev. Dirck C. Lansing, from Heb. 11th, 27th, "For he endured as seeing Him who is invisible."

The conclusion of a sermon preached to his people in Groton, N. Y., by Rev. Joshua Dean, in reference to the death of Rev. Mr. W., his intimate friend, was published in the Cortland Repository, June 16, 1820, and contains an affectionate and deserved tribute.

The "Cortland Repository," of Dec. 4, 1821, contained an Obituary of Mrs. W., from which the following extracts are taken :—

Died, in this village on the 26th ult., after a very lingering and distressing illness, Mrs Aurelia Walker, aged 40 yrs. Mrs. W. was born and educated in Sharon, Conn. Possessing an unusual share of native politeness, a sound judgment, a mild and uniform temper, and a kind and generous disposition, accompanied with a modest and amiable deportment, excellent economy, a good education, a knowledge of human nature, and a spirit of piety and christian benevolence, she was eminently qualified for the important and conspicuous station in which Providence had placed her. Always in possession of the ornament of a meek spirit, she exhibited an example, which not only gained the confidence and esteem of her other christian friends, but of all with whom she formed an acquaintance. Uncommon as it is in these degenerate times, we cannot learn that the tongue of slander ever assailed her. About six months after the death of Mr. W., she was attacked with hemorrhage from the lungs, and gradually declined. During the whole period, 11 mos. and a half, she had to pass through the most trying scenes of bodily pain and distress. But amidst all her sufferings and affliction, she was patient and submissive. Not a murmur escaped her lips, her soul was stayed on God. In this tranquil state of mind she continued with an unwavering faith anticipating her passport to Heaven, in the full exercise of her reason till she sunk into the arms of death. Near the closing scene, being asked the state of her mind she said, "All is well." The last words which she distinctly articulated, were, "God bless my children."

Justice of the Peace in 1840. He has been a surveyor of land more than 40 yrs., and as such, been employed in most of the towns of Bristol Co., and somewhat in Plymouth Co.

He is theoretically and practically a strong opposer to the use of intoxicating liquors. From his youth to the present time, he has labored as hard in all weathers, with axe, hoe and scythe, as any person of his acquaintance, and from his earliest childhood, never drank one drop of intoxicating liquor of any kind. In the yr. 1822, in Western, N. Y., when mowers were pouring down the whiskey, he drank his milk and water, and on no day did he find a man who could do more work than himself. He writes, "I claim to be the oldest person in the state, who has totally abstained from all intoxicating drinks." It is his firm conviction that a condition of health, never needed spirituous liquors. Res. Taunton, (Rocky Woods.) He is a man of sound judgment, great energy, fearless and faithful to his convictions. No man is more respected for sterling integrity, and he has wielded no small influence in the affairs of the town. With a retentive memory he has preserved the traditions of the family, and by his unwearied interest has done much to aid the author of this Genealogy, gathering many facts which supplement the lost records of the town. The author is indebted to no man more than to him for appreciative sympathy, and industrious gleaning.

(9) Catharine A., b. June 26, 1817, m. March 5, 1840, at Grand Haven, Mich., John Brink, who was b. in Phelps, N. Y., Jan. 12, 1811. In 1831, he went to Detroit, and contracted with John Mullet, as a surveyor. They went from Detroit to Galena, wading through water a great part of the way, as the country is marshy; and had to sleep on the prairie without tent or fire, in month of Nov. At night, their legs resembled a dipt candle, largest at the bottom, from the quantity of ice on them. They would get into their blankets, lay there till their boots thawed, pull them off and lay them under their heads for a pillow. At this time, 1831, there was nothing but the military post, and the settler to the United States Army, and one Indian trader, at Chicago. He commenced surveying in Spring of 1832, was interrupted by the Indian War breaking out in May of same year. He returned home, but in Oct. 1832, started for Galena, on foot, with only one young man. As the War had driven the inhabitants from the country, they had to go from 24 to 36 hours without eating. He got through in season, and took charge of Mr. Mullet's party, and continued with him from Oct. 1832 till June, 1833.

In Aug. 1833, he received an appointment as United States Deputy Surveyor of the public lands. At the same time, he received a contract for running Township lines in Wisconsin, in company with Mr. M., and together, they ran all the Township lines from Range No. 3, through to Lake Michigan, and finished the contract in Dec. 1836. During this service, in 1833 and '34, there were eleven months in which he did not sleep in a house, and lived on fresh fish, there being no inhabitants in the territory.

He then contracted with the Government for a large job in Mich., and commenced in Feb. 1838. This was the hardest trip. In this expedition, he came near starving twice. Once he was caught in a snow storm, in which the snow fell 4 ft. deep, and he was 175 miles from any inhabitants.

At another time, his horses all died but one, and there was a swamp 42 miles wide, to travel through. He got his party through to the mouth of the Manistee river, where he had stored his provisions, a distance of 140 miles from where he came near starving. On the way, he found a beech ridge of timber, and gathered beech nuts, which gave him and his party strength to get through. He finished the contract in 1840, and settled in Algonquin, Ill., in July, 1841. He has had two contracts since from the Government, one in 1843 and one in 1844. Has been Surveyor of McHenry Co. 8 yrs. and Sheriff of the County 2 yrs. He commenced the world in limited circumstances, and has been successful. He and w. are both Universalists. Have 2 daus.

to the Legislature one yr. He was a good neighbor, a useful citizen, and esteemed for his upright character and generous nature. His death was the first breach in the circle of children for one-half a century. A Universalist in religious opinion. Res. Westville, Taunton.

229. III. RICHMOND,[7] (436) b. June 19, 1793.

He m. Dec. 2, 1819, Abigail Presbrey,* dau. of Simeon and Anne, of Taunton. She was b. in Norton, June 23, 1794, d. Oct. 17, 1825, in her 32d yr., leaving one son.

Taking a sudden and severe cold she was reduced from perfect health. An internal abscess was formed, (as it appeared after her decease,) which baffled all medical skill, and bore her irresistibly to the grave. Stricken in the prime of womanhood, "her sun went down while it was yet day." During a sickness of a year she calmly set her house in order, and then with meek, placid resignation of the hopes and loves of earth, though fraught with peculiar promise, and with a cheerful religious faith, she fell asleep in Jesus.

She was endowed with great energy, decision and fortitude of character. Her piety was unostentatious, but steadfast and fruitful, ripening into a growth of sweet submission to the will of the Father, and of undoubting, joyful trust in the Savior. She possessed an amiable and equable temper. There were blended in her nature, warm sympathies, generous impulses, moral sensitiveness, and steadfast principle, forming a character of admirable harmony and worth. And this well proportioned and graceful column which Nature reared, Religion strengthened and adorned with the "beauty of holiness." Loving peace, she was devoted to the interests of her household, and it is no extravagance to give her the eulogy—of the faithful wife and mother, "The heart of her husband doth safely trust in her," and "to know her was to love her."

Her epitaph is as follows:—

This is the sweet repose,
Where lies the slumbering saint;
When God appeared to call her home,
She uttered no complaint.

He m. 2dly, Dec. 13, 1826, Mary Seabury, dau. of John W. Seabury, Esq., and Hannah (Church,) of Taunton. She was b. April 16, 1797, and has one dau. of energy and loveliness of character, serene, amiable and cheerful through all the discipline of impaired health and uncertain life. He has been a Shoe Manufacturer in T., 40 yrs. He was Representative to the Legislature, in the session of 1851 and 2, a session memorable for its enactment of the Prohibitory Liquor Law, and was "one of the two men," Hon. Mr. Keyes, of Dedham, remarked, "who pursued a straight forward, uncompromising, and perfectly consistent course," in pressing the Bill to its enactment. As a member of the Com. who reported the Bill, he offered a speech in favor of it, which was solicited for the press and published in the Boston Atlas, and several of the Temperance Journals. He has been an earnest advocate of Temperance from the inception of the Reform; united with the Cong. ch. in 1815, and was elected Deacon, in 1837, and the interests of the church have had his unceasing sympathies and efforts. Though living nearly all this period 3 miles from the place of worship, no one has been less frequently absent from the social and Sabbath services.

He was a Director of the Cohannet Bank, is now a Trustee of the Bristol Co. Saving's Bank, and one of its Com. of investments. With few opportunities for early education, spending his youth on the farm, and in the brick yard, instead of the school house, he is, however, a man of much more than ordinary intelligence. He is highly esteemed for sound judgment, clear and fearless convictions, unimpeachable business integrity, and active, consistent piety.

1, 1849. He afterward took charge of the Pres. churches in Fort Gains, Ga., and Eufala, Ala., which he was soon compelled to relinquish on account of failing health. As a man, he was social and hopeful, fluent in conversation and agreeable in manners. In his habits he was methodical and industrious. He was a great tourist, frequently on foot, as well as on horseback. As a minister, he was always at his post, and discharged his duties faithfully. In the pulpit he was doctrinal and scholarly, which was sometimes urged as an objection, as the illiterate did not comprehend him. His discourses evinced the Theologian more than the Revivalist. (See No. 74,) b. in B., May 25, 1811, and d. May 11, 1844, in Lima, Ind. He graduated at Union Coll., in 1838, and at Andover Theo'l Seminary, 1841. Soon after his marriage he became pastor of the Pres. ch. in Lima, Ind. His memory is still cherished there with devoted affection. In all respects, intellectually, socially, religiously, he was a superior man.

The following Obituary was published in the Boston Recorder, June 13, 1844:—

Rev. Rasselas L. Sears, became hopefully pious at the age of 17, at which time, he solemnly consecrated himself to the work of the Gospel ministry, if God should spare his life. After encountering various pecuniary embarrassments, in obtaining an education, in the Autumn of 1838, he was graduated at Union College with high honor. During his College course, he ever maintained a consistent christian character. Though ardent in pursuit of knowledge, he neglected not the cultivation of his heart. Upon leaving college, he engaged in teaching, at Utica, New York, where he soon secured the warm attachment of his pupils, and numerous friends, with whom he became acquainted. After pursuing with great industry and success, the prescribed course in the Theo'l Institution, at Andover, he was licensed to preach the Gospel, and soon after came to Mich., where he engaged for a year, as principal of Marshall Academy. While there, he received a pressing invitation from the churches at Lima, and Greenfield, Ind., to become their pastor, and acting upon the advice of his friends, he consented to accept the charge. His labors were highly acceptable, and abundantly blessed. Eminently qualified as he was, in mind and heart for his work, the recollection of his many virtues will live long in the hearts of his people. Of a naturally feeble constitution, and deeply devoted to his studies, the seeds of an insidious and fatal disease had taken deep root before he was aware of its approach. But so ardently desirous was he to lead sinners to the Cross, and to build up the walls of Zion, that he yielded with the greatest reluctance to the entreaties of his friends to suspend his labors in the ministry. Though the spiritual wants of this new country, his love for his people, the recollections of the years spent in preparation for the ministry, and his tender affection for his beloved companion, all contributed to render life dear to him, yet his wish to be restored to health, if such were the will of God, seemed to arise mainly from his desire to preach the Gospel. But when he became fully aware that his work on earth was done, he desired to be absent from the body, that he might be present with the Lord. Though for him to live was Christ, yet to die was evidently gain. At times, in the early part of his sickness, more particularly, he complained of a want of faith, but usually, all was bright, and cloudless, and oftentimes he was favored with enrapturing views of the Saviour. While conversing with a brother in the ministry, a few days before his death, he pleasantly remarked, "How blessed it is, that God takes his own way in removing the timbers, one after another, that sustain this frail tabernacle." When he became conscious that his last hour was come, like the great Apostle, when about to leave forever his beloved church of Ephesus, he sent for the Elders of the church, and in a most solemn and affecting manner exhorted them to discharge their duties and weigh well their responsibilities. He told them of his love for them and the church, over which they were placed, and expressed his satisfation that he had remained to die with them, instead of returning to the East. His reason continued to the last. The dying scene was bright and glorious. He gently faded away, like a summer cloud, and fell asleep in Jesus, without a struggle or a groan. As a man he was a gentleman, a Christian gentleman, and a thorough scholar. As a christian he was a humble and eminently devoted servant of the Cross and an able and faithful minister of the Gospel. The day following his death, which was the Sabbath, attended by his brethren in the ministry, slowly and sadly, his smitten flock bore the remains of their beloved pastor to the grave.

Mrs. Sears m. Dec. 24, 1855, Rev. O. P. Hoyt, D.D., of Kalamazoo, Mich. He was b. in Vt., grad. at Middlebury Coll., 1821, Andover Theo. Seminary, 1824. He has resided as Pastor or Agent of the A. B. PHILIP WALKER,[2]

Of Rehoboth,

AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

I. Philip Walker,[2] (2) was the son of "Widow Walker,[1]" of Rehoboth, and brother of James Walker, of Taunton. (See 1st p.) The earliest record of him is a deed bearing his signature dated at Rehoboth, 1653. He was one of the Grand Jury, May 17, 1655, propounded for freedom, June 8, 1655, and took the oath of fidelity, June 1[illegible]658. In June 22, 1658, his name appears in the first division of Rehoboth No. Purchase, (now Attleboro',) when lots were drawn for "the meadow, on the North side of the Town," and again, May 26, 1668, in the division of lands, in the North Purchase.

His birth-place, and age, and date of his arrival in this country, are not known. He married, about 1654, Jane, dau. of —— Butterworth, of Rehoboth, or Michael Metcalf, of Dedham.*

She survived him, and afterward m. June 2, 1684, John Polley, of Roxbury, and lived there till her death, in 1702. Dea. Walker was buried Aug. 21, 1679, and his dust, reposes, no doubt, in the ancient grave-yard, at Seekonk. His estate was appraised, Oct., 1679, on oaths of James Walker,† and Samuel Walker. In'y £681.

His home and farm were on Watchemoket Neck, south of the Great Plain, at what is now the Kinnicut Place, on the road from

* The compiler had supposed, till lately, that Philip's wife was a Butterworth, as his son, Samuel, had an "Uncle Samuel Butterworth." It is, of course, possible, that a Butterworth married a sister of Philip, but it is not known that he had any sister, except Sarah, w. of John Tisdale. What is more probable is, that Butterworth was the uncle of Samuel's wife. Late investigation respecting "Joane Walker," dau. of Michael Metcalf, of Dedham, who, it is stated, in Metcalf's Genealogy, married Samuel (?) Walker, of Rehoboth, has led to the opinion that it was Philip, and not Samuel Walker, whom she married. For reasons, see Samuel Walker, immediately following the descendants of Philip.

† There is no record of any James Walker, in R., in the town register, nor in the Probate Rec. of the County, excepting as far back as 1643 and 45, which have been alluded to, in the sketch of James Walker, of Taunton. (See 6 and 7 pp.) He was about 60 yrs. of age at the time of Philip's death, and was, undoubtedly, the James, who helped appraise his estate.

Providence, R. I., to Barrington, about 1 mile from India Bridge, and in Rehoboth, now Seekonk, an attractive and fertile spot, overlooking the Providence river.*

He left a house unfinished, which the Court ordered to be completed at the expense of the estate. The estate was to be divided as follows:—

"In reference vnto the disposall of the estate of Phillip Walker, late of Rebohoth, deceased, the Court ordered, that the now house in building shall be finished out of the whole intire estate, and that those that shall injoy it, shall make some proportionable abatement, of what shall be theire pticular interest, in the said estate, and that the widdow shall have a comfortable, and convenient being therein, during her widdowhood, and that the said widdow shall have her third of the said estate, and the sume of twenty pound, for and towards the bringing vp of the youngest child, and that the remainder of the said estate be deuided into seauen equall ptes, whereof the eldest, to have a double pte, and the rest to be deuided vnto the other children, in equall and alike proportions."

She gave bond of administration, Oct. 29, 1679,

"June 7, 1681, This Court graunts libertie vnto Jane Walker, widdow of Rehoboth, to make sale of a small psell of meddow ground, with the advice and approbation of Mr. Daniell Smith and Ensigne Pecke.

Philip Walker's occupation in 1659, was that of weaver. He became at length one of the wealthiest men of Rehoboth. In the allotments in 1671, his estate was estimated at £387, and was exceeded by only two in the town, the whole number being 78. In 1678, it was exceeded by only one, in a valuation of 83 estates. He held various positions of trust and honor. He was surveyor, 1657, constable, 1658, on the Grand Inquest, 1668 and '78, one of the Select men, several yrs. between 1666 and '75, and was deputy to Plymouth, 1669. May 14, 1669, he was chosen one of a Committee, to meet a Committee of the new town of Swansey, to settle a controversy, (probably about boundaries.) He also held the office of Deacon, in the Church. Nov. 2, 1663, Goodman Walker was appointed one of a Committee, to buy or build a parsonage,

* The first permanent settlement in Rehoboth, was around the "Great Plain," in that part of the township called Seekonk, meaning, "the abode of the wild goose." It is supposed that Rev. Mr. Newman, and his society, selected this spot because it was an extensive plain, already cleared of forest trees, and favorable for the cultivation of Indian corn. It is not far from the Pawtucket and Providence rivers, and had abundant facilities for obtaining fish and fowl.

or "house for the ministry." This "Goodman,"* was undoubtedly Philip, as there is no trace of any other Walker in R. at that time. June 20, 1678, the town having unanimously called Rev. Mr. Angier, to settle amongst them, "the townsmen and Deacon Walker, were chosen to treat with Mr. A. about it." It was also agreed upon by the town, that the sums to be raised, be freely subscribed, "if it may be," but if the subscriptions fell short, "Deacon Walker, Gilbert Brooks, and 3 others, should devise the mode to raise said sums."

In one period, the towns were obliged to sustain the war against Philip. Many who served as private soldiers, advanced money. The list of those in R. is preserved, and shows that the amount furnished by Deacon Walker, was £26, the largest sum, with two exceptions, and about double what was advanced by any of the 77 others in the catalogue.

Thus, like his elder brother, James, of Taunton, he was prominent in efforts and sacrifices for the maintenance and usefulness of the ministry, and the protection of the settlement from Indian ravages; sustaining at least, one kind of relationship and resemblance to him, and one which is certainly no dishonor. While James in Taunton, was distinguished and useful as one of the Council of War, for Plymouth Colony, Philip, in Rehoboth, was among the foremost in furnishing the "sinews of war." Rehoboth, an isolated plantation, was especially exposed to the incursions of the savages. The first and last blood of that fierce struggle, in which Metacomet or Philip, the powerful and subtle Indian chieftain, fought for the destruction of all the colonists in New England, was shed in Rehoboth. Here the conflict opened in 1675, here it closed by the fall of Philip, in 1676.

Deacon Walker, it is probable, was in that gallant fight of the people of Rehoboth, with Philip, and his best warriors. Driven to desperation, and fearing if he remained at Mt. Hope, he would be taken captive, the sachem fled into the interior, about the 1st of Aug. 1675. Encouraged by the strong appeals of Mr. Newman, their minister, and though not a part of the military force of the Colony, under his leadership, they pursued Philip, with great courage and activity. So rapid was their movement, that they overtook the rear of his forces at night, and with the aid of a party of friendly Moheagan Indians, who had joined them, attacked him and killed 30 of his men, and carried away much booty, without any loss. When the minister led the way in so noble an enterprise, it is no groundless conjecture, that his Deacon was with him, especially one who had advanced money so generously for the defense of the settlement.

March 28, 1776, just after "Pierce's Fight," the Indians fell upon that part of Rehoboth, called Seekonk, and burnt 40 houses and 30 barns. As Dea. Walker, at the time of his decease, 3 yrs. later, left a house unfinished, it may have been, that his was one of those burnt by the Indians. Philip designed an assault upon Taunton, but apprised of it, the town was prepared for defense, and when he approached, July 11, '76, he was met with such determined resistance, that he was compelled to fly, after burning two houses.*

Apprehensive of their destruction, the Cape towns sent a Com. to Bridgwater, Taunton, and Rehoboth, to invite the inhabitants to take up their residence with them during the war, but the invitation was declined. The answer of Rehoboth, by their Com. indicates an unflinching bravery, and a sublime, though submissive faith. The heroic independence, the undaunted fortitude of those isolated settlers, in the face of the appalling perils which threatened their extinction, prove that they were worthy to be among the founders of civilization, and the defenders of religion, in the New World, and are entitled to the grateful remembrance and honor of their descendants and beneficiaries.

"Though no tablets cast their shadows,
Where they slumber from their toil,
Blood of theirs is on our meadows,
Dust of theirs is in our soil."

All the notices of the position and character of Dea. Philip Walker, though few in number, are highly honorable. There is not a single spot on his escutcheon. He was prosperous, accumulating a property that was large for that period. He was entrusted with the most responsible office in the church, save that of the minister. It is indeed a grateful record, his generous contribution for his country and for Christ. His office and his services are a proof of superior excellence in character and usefulness, and leave no doubt that he was eminently a Patriot and a Christian. Cut down in the vigor of his manhood, his death must have been a sore calamity to the colony and the church, "as when an armor bearer falleth."

* When Philip escaped from Mt. Hope, in '75, a part of his warriors scattered in the wilderness, about Taunton, and burnt the houses of James Walker, and John Tisdill, his brother-in-law. John Tisdill, was killed, and 2 other soldiers, who were from Eastham. Though Baylies states this as in 1675, may not the "two houses" burnt July 11th, '76, have been those of J. W. and J. T. It is known that John Tisdill was killed June 27, '76.

"Buried Aug. 21, 1679," as the brief, sad record is, it is no groundless conjecture, that the members of the church, and the inhabitants of Rehoboth, gathered on this early autumnal day, to recognize the services, and honor the memory of the departed Deacon. The thought and utterance of their hearts, interpreting their great loss, may naturally have been, "How is the strong staff broken, and the beautiful rod."

His moral worth and piety have been inherited in a remarkable degree by his numerous descendants, unto the 8th and 9th generations. They furnish proof that the moral character, is an inheritance more surely entailed than any other. They illustrate the law that, "if the root be holy, so are the branches." They teach that, if it be a great privilege, it is also a great responsibility, to "partake of the root and fatness of the olive tree," in a godly ancestry.

For their virtues and piety are to be remembered, not for the fostering of family pride, but as an example and incentive to a worthy life.

It is an idle and self condemnatory boast to say, "we have Abraham to our father," unless we "do the works of Abraham." But a multitude sleep in the old grave yard, at Seekonk, who proved their legitimacy from Deacon Philip Walker, by their christian worth, and many others have gone forth into other wildernesses, to help establish, and sustain the institutions, connected with religion and the public weal, and are now laboring, or resting from their labors, in many sections of the country. Not many illustrious names are found among his numerous, and widely scattered descendants. They have swelled the ranks of the honest, and faithful yeomanry of the land. They have cherished and transmitted the doctrinal faith, and reproduced the piety and usefulness of their ancestor. Of a great number of them it is true.

"They were never squires and teachers,
They were never wise and great,
But they listened to their preachers,
Worshipped God, and loved the State.

"They were men of humble station,
They were women pure and true,
And they served their generation,
Worked, and fought, and lived for you."

He joined the expedition to Quebec, and was there at the taking of the city in 1759. On his return, when between Clarendon (then Socialboro',) and No. 4, New Hampshire, (now Charleston,) he froze his feet badly. Attracted by the appearance of the country on his way home, he travelled up the Otter Creek, as far as Clarendon. On the 1st of April, 1768, removed with his family to C., where he died. He early settled in Coventry, R. I., and built him a house, which was situated a little East of South, from the Summit Station, on Providence and Hartford R. R. All that now remains is the chimney, still standing, (1857,) the house having been taken down in 1853. He left also, other traces of his sojourn in C. South of his dwelling on the hill are two little graves, always said by oldest inhabitants to be graves of Walker children. They are still visible, and the present owner of the farm has lately enclosed the place for a grave yard. It is a tradition there, that Mr. W. one evening saw a strange light on the hill. Losing his 2 chil. soon after, he had them buried where he saw the singular light. These two graves on the hill, alone, and yet guarded for more than half a century, and remembered as Mr. W.'s children, confirm the record in Attleboro', which gives names and births of his chil. He was living in A. in 1750, where he owned lands inherited by will, from his father's estate. It is no wonder that in view of the lands on the Otter Creek, he should abandon the rough soil of Coventry, R. I. Had 12 chil.

He served in the Continental Army, removed to Hardwick in 1779, and bought a farm in the westerly part of the town, to which additions were made as money was acquired. The tillage and improvement of this, almost exclusively occupied him for the remainder of his life. Happy in all his domestic relations, he very seldom went from home, to any considerable distance. True to his Puritan origin, he was scrupulously exact in the performance of every duty devolving on him, and few men enjoyed in a higher degree, the confidence and esteem of the community in which he lived. He and his wife were m. of Cong. ch., in Greenwich, and although the house of worship was about 3 miles from his dwelling, for a long series of years, his seat in the sanctuary was rarely vacant on the Sabbath.

Dr. Abel Baker, of Owasco, N. Y., who lived with his grand father during his youth and early manhood, writes, "I doubt whether there has been a man, among those with whom I have since become fully acquainted, that has more uniformly exemplified the precepts of the Gospel than he did." valuable farm, but was burdened with a heavy debt. Fearing imprisonment, he fled from his home, leaving his young children, and his native State. His calamity and separation proved to be one for life. He was unable to rise above and conquer his misfortunes, wandered from place to place, engaging in any business which promised present success, and failing in all endeavors, he at length died in Chenango Co., Penn.

His wife possessed many of the qualities that distinguish the family to which she belonged, such as talent, sound judgment, kindness and piety. In her early death, her husband lost a wise counsellor and a devoted wife; her children an affectionate and faithful mother; and the world a bright christian example. Love inspired her heart, kind words were the fruit of her lips, and benevolent acts the cheerful offering of her hands.

He was a housewright, emigrated to Johnstown, Saratoga Co., N. Y., and about 1812, removed to Butternutts, N. Y. He was a man of fair abilities, sterling good sense, honest, temperate and remarkably industrious. He was in youth a Congregationalist. His wife was a Friend, and her stronger intellect carried him with her. He ever afterward, worshipped "in the Meeting," and his house was the "home" for all the Ministers of the persuasion. Two only of his children continued their connection with the Friends. He labored for the education of his family, and his ambition was to train them up in honor, usefulness and piety. In 1831, most of the children being settled in life, the old homestead was deserted, and they passed the pleasant sunset of their lives in the home of their dau., Mrs. Munson. Mrs. W., was strong in character, and in person. Of inexhaustible energy and resources, the care of 13 children sat lightly upon her. She d. soon after leaving her home, at Camillus, and both are buried in C.

Says one who knew him well—"He was one of the lights of the earth. A plain, simple mechanic, he brought up 13 children in the fear of God, and in the strictest honesty, and stranger still, in the strictest temperance."

It is the family pride of his descendants, that not one has ever dishonored the life and virtues of the Father, or the sterling goodness of the Quaker Mother.

Of his 7 sons, 4 are mechanics, one a merchant, and 2 are lawyers. All but one of his 13 children are professedly religious.

He was a farmer, settled in Whiting, Vt., rem. in 1791, to Scottsville, N. Y. In 1794, compelled by the Indian wars to return to Vt., he settled in W., and represented the town in the Assembly in 1801 and 5. He also held various town offices. In 1811, he rem. to Cambria, Niagara Co., N. Y. War with Great Britain having been declared, in 1813 the enemy crossed at Niagara, and his family were again driven in terror from their home, taking nothing with them, but a few articles, which were stolen the following night. They carried with them upon a bed, a son sick through exposure and privations. Their privations and sufferings during the War were extreme, and a vivid and sad remembrance of its scenes of terror and disaster, is preserved by their children. They returned to Vt., and again in the Fall of 1815, went to Cambria, where they lived until their death. Mrs. B. was a woman of great excellence and moral worth. Few persons are called upon to pass through the trying scenes that fell to her lot. But her fortitude and patient resignation under all her trials, her firm religious trust, through all her sufferings, taught a lesson worthy to be engraven upon every heart.

A little vol. of 100 pages, entitled, "Maternal Admonition or the Orphan's Manual, by Mrs. Phebe Luce to her children," was published at Cooperstown, N. Y., 1819. She prepared an autobiography entitled, "Vicissitudes of Life," containing about 300 pp. This was never published.

a Selectman, a series of years. He was proverbial for his generosity and his public spirit. If there was a house of worship to be built, a minister of religion to be obtained and supported, any benevolent object to be aided, or public improvement to be accomplished, his purse and influence were generously offered, and to these, was owing the success of many a benevolent and useful enterprise. His benevolence was expended particularly in behalf of the poor. In 1812, he bequeathed to the town of Whiting, 20 acres of land at Whiting Centre, (then valued at $500,) one acre to be used for a Cemetery, and the yearly income of 10 acres to be appropriated to the support of common schools, and the income of the remaining 9 acres, to maintain the preaching of the Gospel. The following tribute is inscribed on his grave-stone :—"The memory of his public spirit will outlast this monument, which marks the humble spot where he lies."

260. V. AMOS ELMORE,[6] (660) b. May 25, 1775, (1774?) in Rutland, Vt., d. Jan. 19, 1850, ae. 75. He m. May 24, 1798, Sally Miller, dau. of Timothy, of Sudbury, Vt., and d. in Hubbardton, Aug. 28, 1849. He was a farmer, lived in Whiting, and after 1838, rem. to H. where they both died. They had 6 chil. 261. VI. JAMES OTIS,[6] (667) b. Aug. 6, 1778, d. Nov. 27, 1857, ae. 79 yrs. He m. Oct. 12, 1798, Mary Olin, dau. of Justin and Sarah, of Shaftesbury, Vt., and sis. of the late Gov. Henry Olin, b. Sept. 25, 1779, and d. Feb. 28, 1806, in Whiting, ae. 26. He m. 2dly, Dec. 4, 1806, Eunice Marsh, of Clarendon, Vt., dau. of Daniel and Phebe, b. in New Milford, Ct., Dec. 25, 1779, and d. Dec. 22, 1858. His early opportunities for education were very limited. The first school in W. was one of 4 weeks, taught by a woman, in 1789, when he was 11 yrs. old. After this, he used to lie in the corner in the evenings, and read, having only pine knots for a light, occasionally going to school a few weeks. At the age of 15, he taught school in Shoreham, for $4 per month, giving instruction only in reading and writing. In 1800, he built and opened a Public House in W., which he and his sons continued with the intermission of 3 yrs. till 1839. His house was one of great celebrity, in that region. He became a magistrate, Dec. 1809, and held the office till he rem. from W. in 1839. During this period, he transacted a large portion of the public business of the town, and often served as administrator, arbitrator, and in similar public and private trusts. As a proof of the high estimation in which he was held, it is a noteworthy fact, that while he was an elevated member of the Masonic Fraternity, and W. was a strongly Anti-Masonic town, he held his office through the entire struggle in respect to Masonry, and such was the confidence reposed in his integrity, that none of his most bitter opponents, questioned the propriety of his retaining his office. His decisions as a Magistrate, were seldom overruled, and his honesty was never questioned by friend or foe. He was, pre-eminently, a peacemaker, and his advice was frequently sought by contending parties. He was an ardent patriot of Whig politics, and till the close of life, watched the course of public affairs with deep and intelligent interest. He represented the town in the State Legislature, 5 yrs., in 1821, '22, '23—and '26. He was the travelling Agent of the Vermont Mutual Fire Ins. Co., 8 years, and no man rendered it more important service, or was more successful in disseminating a knowledge of its principles through the State. His public spirit was proverbial. If a house of worship was to be erected or repaired, a minister to be sustained, any educational or benevolent object to be effected, his purse and his influence were liberally furnished. In 1839, he rem. to St. Albans, Vt., and thence in '47, to Swanton, the adjoining town. Says Rev. J. W. Sawyer, who knew him well,—"He was a friend to education, and gave of his means liberally, to promote it. In all his social relations, he was amiable and generous, active and ever ready to spend, and be spent in the service of his friends, meeting all who approached him, with frankness, courtesy and kindness." His domestic and social virtues shone forth with increased brightness in his later years. He was beloved by all, and especially by children. He delighted more in making a sacrifice to please a child, and receive his happy look and "thank you," in return, than to gain the friendship of the great or affluent. His large and generous heart never grew old. Cheerful and lively, he never became imbittered by misfortune, age or infirmities. Affluent in humor and anecdote, as a companion, he was unusually entertaining. His mind was comprehensive and practical, rather than speculative. A sound judgment, and integrity above impeachment, secured for him confidence in the public and private relations of life. Though without early advantages, yet possessing good natural endowments, his information became extensive by reading, and a wide intercourse with men. Having a retentive memory, he became a living encyclopedia of the age in which he lived. His pen was often employed by public request, in the preparation of temperance addresses, in which reform he took a deep interest, and in poems and other contributions to the newspaper press. In manhood, he was energetic and indefatigable—in old age, genial and busy, even after the 2d shock of paralysis, which rendered him almost helpless. The last two years of his life, he could not walk a step, and his hand was unnerved, yet he maintained an extensive correspondence with a wide circle of friends, and wrote his "Early Reminiscences," as a pastime. He had long been interested in the genealogy of his ancestors and kindred, but had been unable to trace his pedigree beyond his grandfather, (No. 28.) Accordingly, he entered most enthusiastically into the plan of the compiler of this work, and pledged his generous and cheerful co-operation. Becoming religious in early life, he united with the Bap. ch., and his hope in Christ enabled him, in old age, to contemplate his departure with serene and cheerful composure. His end was peace. He was buried in Whiting. The simple epitaph which he left for his tombstone, reads thus,—"He strove to be useful, and to make others happy."

Johnson's strength became entirely exhausted, and Philip had to make continual exertions to rouse him from stupor, and help him on the journey. Their dogs died of starvation. On the 9th day, they fell in with a party of Indians, who had just killed a bear, the intestines of which, after being slightly rinsed in a brook near by, were their first harmless repast, and relief from the pangs of starvation. melee, of G., who was ord., July 3, 1783, 1st Pastor of Cong. ch. in Lee. In person, Mr. W. was over 6 ft. in height, and well proportioned. He was member of the Congress of Deputies of the several towns of Berkshire Co., convened at Stockbridge, July 6, 1774. This County Convention or Congress so called, of the inhabitants of Berkshire, partook largely of the feelings which pervaded the country, in respect to the Revolutionary crisis. The covenant signed in Lenox, July 14, 1774, in reference to the English Gov't, not to import, purchase, &c., was signed by over 100 persons. Among the names was that of Wm. Walker, who with one other only, survived in 1828. (Barber's Hist. Coll.) He was Associate Justice of the Court of Sessions, (a County Court,) 1809, and from 1811 to 1814. The following account of Judge Walker was written by his son, Judge Wm. P. Walker, on the day of his death, Oct. 31, 1831, addressed to Rev. Dr. Shepard, his pastor.

"He was born in Rehoboth, July 3, 1751, and came to this country when about 19 yrs. of age. He joined the army in May, 1775, at Cambridge, immediately after the battle of Lexington. He did not remain in the army till the close of the War. At what time he left, I cannot ascertain. I have heard him mention being with the army in Canada, and their great sufferings, especially from the small pox, which he had the natural way at Montrose. On the retreat of the army from Canada, which I think must have been in the Fall of 1776, he joined Washington's army in N. J., and was in the battles at Trenton and Princeton. He was also in the battle at Bennington, Vt. He was a member of the Convention which framed the Constitution of this Commonwealth, and was repeatedly a member of the General Court from this town. In 1781, soon after the adoption of the Constitution, he was appointed a Justice of the Peace in this county, and was in Commission till his death. In the same yr. he was appointed by Gov. Hancock, Register of Probate, which office he soon after resigned, (1785?) In 1783, he was appointed Senator from this county, but never took his seat at the Board. In Nov., 1795, he was appointed by Gov. Adams, Judge of Probate for this county, which office he resigned in Jan., 1824. In 1807, he was appointed by Gov. Sullivan, a Judge of the Court of Common Pleas in this county, which office he held till a new system for that Court was established. In 1824, he was chosen elector of President and Vice President of the U. States.

He expired this morning at 2 o'clock.

In haste yours, WM. P. WALKER."

The following tribute to Judge W.'s worth, in the Lenox newspaper, was written, it is supposed, by Jas. W. Robbins, Esq.

Died, in this town, on Monday morning last, the venerable Judge Walker, ae. 80 yrs. Gov. Lincoln says, he was the most venerable man he ever saw. All who were acquainted with him, will say the same. If locks whitened in the snows of 80 winters; if great personal dignity, connected with distinguished excellence of character; if the practice of the social virtues, together with a long life of public service; if exemplary morals and genuine piety give one the title of venerable, he was venerable. He was an officer in the American troops at Cambridge, in 1775, and from that period for more than ½ a century, he was a public man. Of the Convention that formed the Constitution of Mass., he was a member. For a long time he held the office of Judge of the County Court, and still longer that of Judge of Probate. He took a deep interest in the religious and charitable institutions of the last 25 yrs., and of the Bible Society, he was a President from its organization. He was extensively known in the Commonwealth, and as extensively respected. In the Co. of Berkshire, no man was better known or commanded more respect. Of the town of Lenox he was a father, and the inhabitants looked up to him with filial affection He was a companionable man. Persons of all ages, the young as well as the old, sought his society, and few enjoyed it without sensible benefit. From his general intelligence, they obtained valuable information; from his practical wisdom, they derived useful lessons, applicable to the various concerns of life; and by his bright example they were stimulated to improvement. In his last yrs., he partially withdrew from the bustle of politics, from the labors and honors of office, and from the attractions of the world, and looked forward as an old man should do, to another state of existence.

Faith helped his vision to reach beyond the grave, and the anchor of his hope was moored in Heaven. Towards the close of his life, his religious character brightened, and as worldly objects grew less in his esteem, the objects of faith grew more distinct and more glorious. In expectation of appearing before the Eternal, his many virtues, and the usefulness of his life vanished from his view, and for acceptance he relied entirely upon the atonement and righteousness of his Divine Master. During his last sickness, he was deprived of his speech, and the most of the time, of his reason, so that he was unable to say anything of his hopes and prospects, but he has left to his friends for their consolation and improvement, the history of his whole life.

Allen's Biographical Dictionary, has in addition to a brief outline of his public services, this tribute.

"In his politics he was a republican in the party times of 1801. He was tall, with white locks, and of great personal dignity, * * * He was, indeed, venerated by those who knew him, not only for a long life of faithful service, but for his social virtues, his pure morals, his disinterested benevolence and ardent piety. Of the church at Lenox, he was an exemplary member; of the Berkshire Bible Society, President. In one of the last yrs. of his life he travelled over the bleak hills of Berkshire, with the sole object of arousing his fellow citizens in different towns, to a sense of the value of some moral or charitable institution designed for their benefit.

His epitaph, written it is supposed by Rev. Dr. Shepard is as follows:—

He went to K., with his father at the age of 6 yrs., rem. to Ware, Mass., before 1790, thence to Greenwich, R. I. In 1798, he was in Poultney, Vt., and there as late as 1808. Thence he rem. to Ames, Ohio, where he remained till his death. As a physician he was successful, and maintained an irreproachable character through his long life. His descendants are no dishonor to his memory. Three were at one time officiating elders in the church. His life was eventful, and is an interesting and instructive biography, especially in regard to religious belief and experience.

The following account of his scepticism and subsequent conversion, is taken from the American Pastor's Journal and Home Missionary Magazine, vol. 5th, 201st p., 1832

Dr. W., was born in a New England village, in 1766. His parents were respectable and of reputed piety. He early gave indications of a vigorous mind, and of a susceptible heart. His religious education ended where it ought to have commenced—with a knowledge of the Shorter Catechism. At an academy, he distinguished himself as a scholar, and made considerable progress in the Latin language. At the age of 22, he commenced the practice of medicine. His profession, of necessity, brought him in contact with the world. And here commenced a series of associations, which threw a cloud over more than 40 yrs. of his life. He was first pressed with the doctrine of universal salvation. * * And as it required no sacrifices, no self denial, and no self abasement, it readily recommended itself to the unrenewed heart. He tried to believe it. But his discerning mind detected the sophistry of the system, and left him restless as the rolling billow. * * * * The next step was to destroy the veracity of the Bible. * * To aid him in this fearful work, he called in Paine, Voltaire and Rosseau. He went not to the Bible to contemplate the sublimity of its doctrines—the purity of its precepts, the harmony of the system of revealed truth, and its tendency, as illustrated by facts, to promote the happiness of man. Like other infidels, he cast off fear, and restrained prayer before the Almighty. Thus 12 yrs. passed away, all the while professedly seeking for light, and yet not once directing his eye to Heaven. Those who did pray, he thought infatuated; and though sometimes, he was compelled to think them sincere, yet in his view, they were sincere hypocrites. The next 12 yrs. he spent in the mercantile business. He read and reasoned much, but only on such subjects as were calculated to make his infidel fortress strong. At length, the embargo embarrassed his business, and he with his family removed to the State of Ohio. There he resumed his former profession, and after 12 yrs., declined practice, to spend the remainder of his days in the quiet of retirement on a farm. Three score winters had now whitened his head, and yet the old man bowed not his knee in prayer. He had been what the world would call a strict moralist. * * He gloried in his consistency, and in the pride of his heart, looked with contempt on those, whom he called inconsistent christians. Their irregularities, whether fancied or real, he readily seized, to confirm himself in infidelity. Although he was not forward to disseminate his principles, he occasionally sought an encounter, to try the temper of his weapons. Having been so long accustomed to them, he could use them with no ordinary skill. With the keenness of his satire, and the cunning of his sophistry, he almost invariably triumphed. Success inspired him with courage, and increased his intellectual pride.

In the winter of 1831, the debate between Campbell and Owen fell into his hands. His long cherished sentiments and feelings inclined him to espouse Owen's side in the argument. As he read, he was struck with the palpable weakness, and inconsistency of his reasoning. "What," said he, "if the Deist has no better arguments than these, to support his system, I am ashamed of it." For the first time in his life, he was now seriously alarmed at the thought, that possibly, he had built his house upon the sand. Thought begat feeling and deep anxiety. In this state of mind, Providentially Wilson's "Evidences of the truth of Christianity" came within his reach. As he read, day began to dawn on a night of more than 40 years. The light of the truth rendered the darkness visible, and his danger apparent. * * * * He rose from the perusal of Wilson, convinced that the Bible is what it professes to be,—a Revelation from Heaven. This truth admitted, conviction of sin rushed upon his mind, and the old man bowed down his head in agony. He attended a meeting in the neighborhood, and heard two sermons by a passing preacher, from the following texts:—"Choose ye this day whom ye will serve:" and, "Now is the accepted time, behold! now is the day of salvation." The Holy Spirit made the word quick and powerful. He went home to read, and revere that volume, which for about half a century, he had neglected and despised. The man who had never prayed before, went home to cry—"God be merciful to me a sinner." His conscience was shaken, and he trembled under the mighty hand of God. After a short season of severe conflict, between the powers of light and darkness, the star of Bethlehem arose, and led him to Jesus. It was on a Sabbath morning. The night preceding had been dark to his soul. He arose from his pillow just as the day dawned, when the following train of thought passed through his mind. "This is the resurrection morning —on this morning Christ rose from the dead! But why did he die? To save sinners. Well, I am a sinner—a great sinner—and will he not save me?—Lord Jesus, save or I perish!" The storm was over, and the calmness of Heaven came over his spirit. He walked out. The winter was so far gone, that the birds were singing their morning anthems. The eastern sky appeared glowing in new and indescribable beauty. The fields and the forest seemed dressed in unwonted loveliness. Heaven and earth looked glad. He gazed and admired, and could no longer keep silent. Although unaccustomed to sing—

> His tongue broke out in unknown strains,
> And sung surprising grace.

The next day on meeting him, he readily gave vent to his new-born feelings and hopes. Said he, "I have lived 60 yrs. and am scarcely 2 days old. I am a miracle of the grace of God! O how could I support old age without the consolations of religion, and without the promises written in that blessed volume, which I have so long slighted and abused!" Soon after, he had the happiness to embrace a prodigal son, who had wandered in the same cheerless path of infidelity. On the same day they both entered into covenant with God, and with his people. * * * * After a life devoted to the cause of infidelity, he testified "I am led from a review of my past experience, to declare as my belief, that with all the infidel's boasted assurance, there never was a person brought up in a christian land, who could at all times, honestly and unhesitatingly say, I feel secure in a disbelief of the Bible."

the Grand Rapids Enquirer, and a member of the Legislature of Mich. in the session of 1840 and '41. Commencing the study of Law in 1841, in the office of Hon. Henry Morris, Springfield, Mass., in a few mos. he went to Brattleboro', Vt., to read Law with Hon. J. D. Bradley, and soon became his partner. Remaining there 3 yrs., he rem. to Bellows Falls, Vt., to take the office of Judge Kellogg, promoted to the Supreme Bench, and was very successful. In 1851, he went to Detroit, Mich., and became law partner with his brother Edw. C. He has achieved an eminent position as an advocate and jurist, and has a large and lucrative practice. He is m. Cong. ch., and has 2 chil.

At the organization of the Law Department of the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor, in 1859, he was elected by the Board of Regents, "Kent Professor of Law," which position he now holds, though still residing in Detroit, and continuing his professional business. He has for several yrs. been making researches into the early and romantic history of the North-West, and especially that of Mich. Through his instrumentality, principally, the Historical Society of Mich., founded by Gen. Cass and others in 1828, was re-organized in 1857, and he is its Corresponding Secretary. He delivered an address on "The Founding of Detroit," July 24, 1858, it being the 167th anniversary of its settlement; another on the "Early History of Mich.," March, 1859, which were published, and has read quite a number of papers upon similar subjects before the Hist. Society. Having collected a library of rare works, pertaining to the West, probably the best and most extensive of its kind, in that section of the country, he is gathering materials for a work on its early history. To him, though bringing no wealth, and exciting little attention, these studies have a special charm.

The story of his youthful ambition and struggles for an education, and his subsequent honors and success is as follows:—

About the age of 16 years, he determined in his own mind, to obtain a liberal education; but his parents wishing to keep both their sons upon the old homestead, were much opposed to it, and would not accede to his wishes for several yrs. They however afforded him, as they did their other children, the opportunities of a good academic education. Unknown to his parents, he commenced the study of the Greek and Latin languages, while at the Castleton Academy, and made sufficient progress to enable him to pursue them without a teacher. On learning that he was engaged in such studies, his father took him home, and told him that he had better learn the art of farming. To this, he submitted cheerfully, and continued to labor on the farm for some time, but in the meanwhile pursued his studies, late every evening, and every rainy day. In the Winter, he taught school, and husbanded his money like a miser. In the month of Aug. 1829, the day when the haying was finished, his father gave his workmen an extra treat, as was then usual on such occasions. Calling them together, for this purpose, he found that this son was absent, and inquiring where he was, was told, that he was at his room studying Latin. The son was sent for, and asked what good he supposed his Latin would ever do him. He replied, "I thought I could prepare myself to enter Coll. by the time I should be 21 yrs. old. The father then asked, how he expected to defray the expenses of a Collegiate education. To this, he promptly answered, "by economy and industry," and then told him how much money he had laid up for the purpose, and that when this was exhausted, he could suspend his studies for a while, and obtain more by teaching. Musing a moment, his father said, "If you are resolved on obtaining an education, the quicker you are about it, the better," and, added, "Tell your mother to have your clothes ready, and I will take you to the Castleton Academy to-morrow morning." He did so, and the next morning, at 4 o'clock, was on his way to C. In Aug. 1830, he entered Coll. at Middlebury, Vt., and was graduated in Aug. 1834. He studied Law with John Pierpoint, Esq., at Vergennes, Vt., adapting his studies to the course pursued in the Law Department of Yale Coll. The next yr., he entered the Law School at New Haven, Ct., and by close application, was able to recite and keep up with both the Junior and Senior Classes, at the same time, and thus completed a two years' course in one year, and was examined and admitted as an Attorney and Counsellor at Law, in N. H., in July, 1836. Spending a few weeks with his parents at home, to recruit, and receiving and declining several very favorable overtures to go into partnership with old and established lawyers in his native State, he determined to seek his fortunes in the West; and after traveling in the Western States about 2 months, finally located in Romeo, Mich. In 1837, while on a visit to the East, the people of the County, unsolicited and unknown to him, petitioned the Governor, and obtained his his appointment as Prosecuting Attorney of Macomb Co., for the term of 2 yrs. In the Autumn of 1839, he was unanimously nominated by the County Convention, upon the 1st ballot, as candidate for Rep. to the State Legislature, and was triumphantly elected. He was then chosen Senator for 2 yrs., and in 1843 and '45, Representative again. In 1850, he was a member of the Convention to revise the State Constitution. He was appointed one of the Regents of the State University, in 1844, and succeeded in obtaining the establishment of a Branch of the University at Romeo, and was President of the Branch, until its discontinuance in 1853. The Dickenson Institute was then established in its place, and new buildings erected. He is one of the Trustees and its President.

March 4, 1857, he removed to a place in the woods, in St. Clair Co., on the Port Huron & Milwaukie R. He is now principally employed in extensive lumbering operations, and in developing the growth of his new town.

He was graduated at Middlebury College in 1833, read Law in Rochester, N. Y., 1833–4, and in Buffalo, 1835–6, where he commenced his professional practice in 1836. After the alteration of the State Constitution, giving the election of Judges to the people, he was a Judge of Erie County Courts, until his death. He was also Clerk of the City of Buffalo several yrs. He was a close student, and a man of sound judgment and unblemished integrity. Since his decease, a small vol. of fugitive poems, which he wrote during the first yrs. of his professional life, has been published. For one of them, he received the prize of a silver cup, valued at $50, and no one can read them without conceiving a high respect for the poetic genius, and the nobility, both of heart and mind, which could dictate them.

The following resolutions of the Bar, testify to the ability and worth of the man, and the loss occasioned by his decease.

"Whereas, The Mysterious Providence of God has suddenly snatched from our midst, the Hon. Jesse Walker, Judge of Erie County, Therefore it is Resolved by us, his surviving brethren of the Bar, that in the death of Judge Walker, Justice has lost from out her Temple, a pure and upright minister; the County of Erie, an able and valued Judge, and ourselves, a most worthy and deserving brother.

Resolved, that by this bereavement, so sudden, so unexpected, we are deeply and keenly afflicted. In the prime of life and health—in the maturity of ripened powers, cultured and enriched by much nice and varied learning—just entered upon the duties of an honorable and responsible official station, in which studious habits, patience of examination, solidity of judgment, integrity, courtesy and modesty, gave assured promise of excellence, and walking before men blameless in the purity of his private life and domestic relations, our friend has been cut down and removed. We mourn his loss, and will cherish his memory. How impressive the reiteration of that fearful truth, which we all so well know, yet so little heed, that 'in the midst of life we are in death.' * * *

Resolved, that the Court over which our deceased friend and brother so lately presided, in the flush and buoyancy of health, at its next session, be moved that these resolutions be entered in its minutes, as a permanent testimonial of our sorrow for his loss, and respect for his character." * *

"There is no allusion in the above proceedings, to the Christian calmness and resignation, which marked his last hours. He died in the full possession of his faculties, and in the peaceful trust of

'One who wraps the drapery of his couch
About him, and lies down to pleasant dreams.'

He received the Holy Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, and in peace with God and man, fell asleep, and 'was gathered to his fathers.'" (Preface to his Poems.)

is condensed into the following testimony to her worth:—"In the Spring of 1837, and at the age of 13 yrs., she became the subject of a moral change, and soon after, made a public consecration of herself to the cause of Christ, of which, she was a cordial and devoted friend, till her death.—Few mothers, if any, have felt a greater solicitude for the moral, as well as intellectual training of their children.—But the interests of her own family were not allowed to keep her from efforts, to do good to others also. To assuage their pain, to relieve their distress and anguish, she seemed to be willing to imperil her own health, or endanger her life. The various causes of benevolence found in her a warm friend, a firm and effectual supporter. Possessing the means of aiding these objects, it was her pleasure to improve them; thus rendering herself one of our most generous, and useful members of society. Her departure was sudden and unexpected, but her hope, in the hour of extremity, did not fail her—her faith in her Savior remained unshaken."

CHIL. OF HON. WILLIAM WALKER,[6] [288] OF LENOX.

786. I. WILLIAM PERRIN,[7] (1508) b. Oct. 8, 1778, in Lenox, d. Nov. 11, 1858. He m. Jan. 29, 1807, Lucy Adam, dau. of John Adam, Esq,, of Canaan, Ct., and had 9 chil. He was graduated at Williams Coll. in 1798, was admitted to the Bar, and began the practice of Law in 1801, (1803?). He was proposed for admission to the Supreme Court in 1804, and the usual entry was made, "and the Court will advise." He was not actually admitted till 1810. He was Representative 1 yr., 1809, and Senator 1810, '11 and '15, in the State Legislature: was a candidate of the Republican party for Representative to Congress. He was Chief Justice of the Court of Sessions of the County, from 1819 to '28, a member of the Governor's Council in 1811 and '24, and in 1824, on the resignation of his father, he was appointed Judge of Probate, which office he held 24 yrs., till his resignation in 1848, when the infirmities of age compelled him to seek seclusion from public cares. He was also nominated by the Whig party, as a candidate for Lieut. Governor, with Gov. Everett, but declined the nomination. He was one of the most prominent of the old Jeffersonian party, in the Western part of the State; but he abjured politics, in the later years of his life. Over 6 ft. in height, and well proportioned, his personal appearance and manners, were uncommonly dignified and elegant, and could always command attention and deference. He possessed an unusual sensitiveness, which lent a refinement, delicacy and courtesy, to his character and deportment, and unfitted him for the strifes of political life. Shrinking from the vices, so common among men of his profession, always temperate, honorable and true, he was distinguished by remarkable purity of morals. He was fond of reading, exceedingly well informed, of quick discernment, and penetrating judgment. Hospitality and generosity, were prominent qualities in his character. Meanness, his soul never knew. His dispatch in business was remarkable. As a citizen he was mild, candid, and free from all partizan feeling and expression. His influence in the town, was very great, and all looked up to him for counsel, and paid him the highest respect. He was also very affectionate and amiable in temper, and in the relations of domestic and private life, he was exemplary and faithful. As a Judge he was courteous, patient, dispassionate, intelligent, and impartial. Honorable sentiments, unquestioned integrity, and genial and pleasant manners, made him a popular citizen, and a highly satisfactory Judge; and during the active years of his life, he held an enviable position in the affections, respect and confidence of the people of Berkshire County. His father, the elder Judge, could control an audience wonderfully. The son was not so popular as a speaker. The two were very different men, yet alike in integrity, and strong sense of justice, and in the situations they occupied, these traits, peculiarly qualified them, to be the protectors of the widow and fatherless, and for the long period of more than half a century, they discharged the duties of the office, with signal ability and success. They are both remembered and spoken of to this day, as men of most excellent judgment, incorruptible honor, and spotless purity.

A Discourse in memory of Judge Walker, upon the text, Job, 19th chap., 21st v., was preached, Nov. 14, 1858, by Rev. E. K. Alden, pastor of the Cong. church in L. It is published and entitled, "The Lesson of Severe, Protracted Suffering." The following is an extract:—

"If what I have looked upon, was, as I have been told, but the wreck,—that silvered head, that brow, that front, were a noble ruin—it must once have been a princely crown. * * * * * The mere cold statement that, 'he moved into his sick room in Oct. 1851, and never left it without assistance; has continued almost perfectly helpless; for nearly four years has received his food from the hands of others; and for several months has been unable, but with extreme difficulty to converse even with his own family; how little such a brief summary tells us of what have constituted so many days and nights of continuous discomfort, often associated with excruciating pain. * * * * It is a grateful record to add, that on the Sabbath, the 7th of March, 1852, in the presence of a few friends—this venerable man was received in his sick room, to the fellowship of the visible church of Christ."

She was a very superior woman, and m. Cong. ch. He pursued his professional studies under Dr. Hall, of Middletown, Ct., and was a highly respectable physician in L. He however, engaged early in manufacturing pursuits, which drew off his attention from his profession. He was a member of the Legislature about 1827, and was a sincere christian, honored and beloved. Children of THOMAS WALKER,[6] [301] of Utica, N. Y.

831. I. Mary Elvira,[7] b. Jan. 10, 1800, d. Sept. 5, 1859. She m. June 17, 1822, John Hancock Ostrom, son of Hon. David, of Paris, N. Y.

The following just estimate of Mrs. O.'s life and character, appeared in the Utica Morning Herald of Sept. 6, 1859:—

For her, few words of eulogy can be necessary, for the poor knew her liberal hand, the afflicted her sympathizing word, the church her ever active, ever disinterested energy, and the thousands of children now weekly gathered into the Sabbath schools of the city, enjoy the advantages of an institution of which she may fairly be recognized as here, the originator and graceful pillar. The qualities which, in her mature years, so endeared her to all, and brought forth such abundant fruit of usefulness, were early developed. Having been brought by her parents to this city, in childhood, nearly a half century of benevolent, religious labors, unremitting and humble, and therefore more than ordinarily efficacious, have secured for her a pre-eminent place, in the history of the charities and religious labors of our city. While with many who have grown up, meeting her weekly in the Sabbath school, her labors in that institution have chiefly commended her to their esteem and affection, it is but one of the many modes in which she exerted herself to do good. In tract distribution, in personal acts of benevolence, in zeal and energy, in all matters relative to the church, with which she was connected and the cause of religion generally, she had no peer in the system, constancy, and disinterested fidelity of her labors. Certainly not in the church of which she was a member, perhaps not in the whole community, is there a person whose religious influence has been so decided, and so pervading as hers. She had one master passion: to do good, to relieve suffering, and convert souls to CHRIST. Herein lay her ambition and her pleasure; the singleness of purpose with which she pursued this object, is the explanation of the degree of usefulness she achieved.

In 1816, the deceased, who had then recently (1814) made profession of religion during a revival, was one of four young ladies to originate Sabbath schools in this city, (the first West of Schenectady.)

For more than forty years Mrs. Ostrom continued her labors in the Sabbath school, and for months after she felt that the hand of death was upon her, she attended every Sunday, at a mission school, still prosecuting the self-denying labor, she had begun in the bright dawn of her maidenhood.

While Mrs. Ostrom chose the Sabbath school as the scene of active labor, she made it also the subject of careful study. As evidence of the well-digested opinions she had long ago formed concerning it, it may be mentioned that twenty years ago, or more, application having been made to her, with others, for hints towards a work on the "Sabbath School Teacher," by Rev. John Todd, she elaborated an essay on the question, "Ought unconverted persons to be employed as teachers in Sabbath Schools?" which is embodied in that work. She possessed a good degree of culture and accomplishments, which to another would have been conspicuous. With her, the depth of religious feeling, and the zeal of religious labor, rendered all other qualities subordinate.

Her practical liberality was commensurate with her theoretical benevolence, and her religion, while a light set upon a hill, yet irradiated, warmed, and blessed her home, and every private relation of life. While active beyond what is ordinary in either sex, in every good work, she never offended the nicest sense of female delicacy, never for an instant stepped beyond the strictest limits of woman's sphere.

For nearly three weeks she lay in almost hourly anticipation of death. She was peaceful, nay triumphant in her faith of a blissful immortality, and still exhibited that disinterested solicitude for the eternal welfare of her friends, which ever rested in her heart, and rose upon her lips.

A Discourse commemorative of Mrs. O., by Rev. P. H. Fowler, D. D., of Utica, upon the text, Rom. 16th chap., 3d and 4th verses, and entitled, "Woman's Sphere of Usefulness," has been published.

Mr. O. was a lawyer, and d. in Poughkeepsie, Aug. 10, 1845, ae. 51 yrs.

The following is condensed from the tributes to his memory, which appeared in the Utica papers:—

"He successively occupied the offices of Clerk, Trustee and Assessor of the then village, (Utica,) and after its incorporation as a city, those of a mem. of the Common Council and Mayor. He rose through the various Military grades, to that of Major General, and subsequently, for several yrs., discharged the duties of Chief Engineer of the City Fire Department.

His life was one of great activity and usefulness. Often called by his fellow citizens to occupy posts of honor, he discharged their duties with promptitude and fidelity. Never has our community been called to mourn the loss of a citizen more respected and beloved. The urbanity of his manners, the strength of his friendship, the tenderness and benevolence of his heart, had endeared him to a very large circle of acquaintance. Although overtaken by death, while absent from home, it found him not unprepared. For several yrs. he had been a m. of the ch. of Christ, and in his dying hour, his will was submissive, his faith was strong, and his soul was replete with love to God and man. So triumphant was his faith, that it robbed death of its sting, and communicated to surviving friends a comfort inestimable, in the sad hour of their bereavement."

The following is compiled from the several obituaries which appeared in the Ithaca, New Brunswick and Utica papers, after Mrs. Mann's decease:—

"She became pious, when very young, united with the Pres. ch. of Utica, and from that time evinced the genuineness of her conversion, by the interest she felt in the cause of her Redeemer. By her engaging deportment, she soon won the affection of all with whom she associated, and a very short acquaintance was sufficient to form the closest ties, and to excite the tenderest affection. Scarcely had she been united to him who had promised to nourish and protect her, and who fondly anticipated through a long series of yrs. to redeem his pledge, ere the dread foe to man, envious of mortal bliss, sent in advance his messenger of disease, and claimed her for his own. A fever of typhoid character, which baffled the skill of her physicians, and tantalized the vigilant watchings of her friends, at a period which promised recovery, proved treacherous and fatal. From the scene of nuptial festivity, from the bridal chamber to the grave, brief was the journey of this young and lovely victim.

She had before her, the fairest promise of happiness. Her intelligence, piety and gentleness of manners, admirably fitted her for the responsible station she had assumed as the wife of a clergyman; and during the few brief months of her married life, she had acquired the love and firm regard of her newly adopted friends. Death came upon her when the attachment to life is usually strongest, and the victim least prepared. But she was found confident in her faith, and resigned herself tranquilly to the summons above."

She was beautiful in person, more than ordinarily intellectual, of devoted piety, and the fragrance of her memory is still precious. The sermon preached by Rev. Dr. Bethune, in improvement of her early death, was subsequently published.

His studies were arrested in his 2d yr. by a severe and protracted illness. On his recovery he taught school a-while, and then studied theology with Rev. Dr. Ide, of Medway.

He was ord. as Evangelist for the West at Medway, Aug. 25, 1831, and commenced preaching at Guilford, O., Oct. 2, 1831. Half of the time for a few years was spent in other neighboring places. In Sept. 21, 1836, he was installed as pastor, in which relation he continued until May 8, 1849, when it was dissolved at his own request. The reason of this step was found in the prevalent impression among a portion of the people, that as he had been with them a long time, a change of laborers might be beneficial. The pastor was willing the experiment should be tried. But after a trial of about 3 yrs. he was invited to return, which he did, and accepted the invitation, March, 1852. SAMUEL WALKER,

Of Rehoboth.

In the Metcalf Genealogy, contributed by Dr. Luther M. Harris, of Jamaica Plain, to the Genealogical Register, 1852, 172 pp., there is an abstract of the will of Michael Metcalf, of Dedham, dated 15: 9, 1664. In it, he made this bequest: "To my daughter, Joane Walker, 40s." There were other chil., sons and daus. Joane was the 10th child, b. March 24, 1632, and m., the Genealogy states, Samuel (?) Walker, of Rehoboth. The will, however, does not give Mr. W.'s christian name. There is no Samuel, of so early a date, in any Old Colony Record, either town or county, and every Walker (except one since 1800,) who is mentioned in the Records of Rehoboth, Seekonk and Attleboro', (parts of the old township of Rehoboth,) and also in Bristol Co. Rec., has a place in the Genealogy of Philip Walker and his descendants. There is strong circumstantial proof, that there was no Samuel Walker in R. so early.

May not the compiler of the Metcalf Genealogy have mistaken Samuel for Philip. Philip's wife's name was Jane. The dates also will justify this theory. Besides, Philip had a son Michael. May not his name have been derived from the grandfather Michael. This is the only instance in which the name occurs among nearly 1900 Walkers, descendants from Philip, and as he had a son Samuel, it is probable, that tradition has confounded the names, and led the compiler of the Metcalf Genealogy into error.

With no other proof of the existence of a Samuel Walker in Rehoboth, at this period, except the Metcalf Genealogy, it is very much less probable, that "he died and left no sign," and no descendant, than that there was no such Samuel Walker.

1. WILLIAM WALKER, (2)

Of Eastham,

AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

The earliest notice of any William Walker in this country, is found in the Proprietors' Records of the town of Hingham. He received a grant of land in 1636, among the first settlers of H. And it is highly probable, that he is the William mentioned in Savage's Gleanings, with Richard, James and Sarah embarking for New England, in the Elizabeth, in April, 1635; (see 4th p. of this Genealogy;) 1st, because several of those who received grants in Hingham at this time, afterward went to Taunton, where James and Sarah were, and several to Rehoboth, where James Walker's mother and brother Philip settled. In addition to this, the date of his grant, harmonizes with that of his leaving England. Furthermore, there is no trace of a William Walker in any other town of the Old Colony, at so early a period. And this mention of a grant of land to him in Hingham, is the only one in the records of H. concerning him. He then disappears. These circumstances favor the conjecture, that the William in H. in 1636, and the William afterward in Eastham, were the same person. Only 16 years of age when in Hingham, if we suppose him to have been the William of the Elizabeth, from London, the dates respecting William Walker of Eastham, do not make the theory at all improbable; they rather confirm it, inasmuch as these were the only William Walkers in the Old Colony, of whom there is any record.

In an article by S. G. Drake, Esq., in the N. E. Hist. & Gen. Reg., Oct. 1860, on "The Founders of New England," is the following, copied by him, from a small parchment vol. in the Rolls Office, Chancery Lane, London :—

"May the 11th, 1637. The examinaction of John Gedney of Norwich, in Norff.....to passe for New England with his wife Sarah, ageed 25 yeares.....Lediah, Hannah and John; mo^{r} 2 Seruants; William Walker, ageed.....Burges ageed 26 yeares are desirous to passe for Salam."*

He may have been the William, of whom the Mass. Col. Records, Vol. IV., Part II., 66 p., (1662) give the following memorial:—

"In ans^{r} to the petition of Willjam Walker, seaman, now a prisoner for the breach of ye law abt making suite to a servant majd wthout the masters consent first obteyned, &c., the Court, considering he was a strainger, & not knowing the lawe, that he hath lyen in prison neere a moneth, judged meet to graunt his request & dischardg him, he paying the chardge of the prison."

As John Gedney came to Salem, his "Seruant William Walker" belonged to the Mass. Colony, and there being no trace or record of a William Walker in the Colony, except the preceding, he may have been the unfortunate person whose matrimonial aspirations received such unfriendly treatment from the master of the "servant majd," but whose ignorance of the lawe, enlisted the lenity of the Government. Whether one and the same, or not, neither of them could have been the William in Hingham, 1636, and without doubt, neither, was the William of Eastham. These, though few, are all the instances of the name in the ancient records, except such as are known to relate to William of E.†

There can be little doubt that the William emigrating in the Elizabeth, April, 1635, and 15 years of age, was the William of H., in 1636, and though there is no positive proof that he went to E., yet, as there is no trace of him in H. after 1636, it may be presumed, that he was the one who settled in E., and was the father of the Eastham Walkers. He was not related to the other Walkers of the Old Colony, or if so, only remotely, being of the same age as James of Taunton, who came in the same ship with him. As his name is associated in the certificate of conformity, with "Richard ae. 24 yrs.," who went to Lynn, it is more probable they were more or less nearly related.

WILLIAM WALKER OF EASTHAM, b. 1620, m. Jan. or Feb., (Feb. 25, Plym. Col. Rec.,) 1654, Sarah Snow, dau. of Nicholas,‡ of E., had 6 chil., and d. at an advanced age. His will was proved, 1703.

His name is in the list of those able to bear arms in 1643, but the time of his settlement in E., is unknown. He was propounded June 8, 1655, and admitted to freedom, June 3, 1656. He was chosen to take up the excise, in 1664 and '67, and to take notice of what liquors were brought into the Gov., and the following is evidence, that he was not neglectful of the duties of his office, nor indifferent to the welfare of the town :—

"Trustrum Hull, of Barnstable, brought a barrell of rum to the town of E., and sold it, but gave noe account of it to either of us, and we thought it good to giue the Court notice of it. June 9, 1655."

Willam Walker,
John Done.

He was surveyor of highways, 1668, '69, '78 and '79, and constable in 1682.

"May 3, 1653, there were agitations about and conserning a warr with the Duch, in these ptes of America,....and messengers sent by comissioners to the Munhatoes,....and preperacön was made, viz., warrants issued for the pressing of 60 men; Eastham to furnish 3. Morouer two barkqes were alsoe pressed to attend the expedition, ...the barkqe in which Richard Knowles sayleth, with him, the master thereof was pressed for the same purpose with John Younge and Willam Walker, and all things nessearie for their vse belonging to the said barkqe." Plym. Col. Rec., 3d vol., 30, 31 pp.

Ralph Smith was fined, in 1662–3, for striking and thrusting over a boat thought Willam Walker. Samuel Smith was fined, for saying he "could find in his hart to stick a pen into Willam Walker."

They may have had some provocation, for the Col. Rec. show, that as a man, he was not altogether blameless.

Plym. Col. Rec. 6th vol., 170th p., June 2, 1685. "William Walker, haueing 2 naturall sons in the training band, and 1 killed in the warrs, and some weakness and infirmitye of body, the Court orders that hee, the said William Walker, from hence forward shall be excused from training."

Grants of land were made to him, as follows, viz.:—

"A parcel of land granted to Wm. Walker, lying upon * * * * * * containing 20 acres, more or less. Lying on the southwest side of the pond; and bounded at each corner by 4 several trees marked, leaving a sufficient passage between his land and the pond, as the trees are marked, the tree upon the southwest corner being upon a * * * *. April 27, 1659.

A parcel of meddow granted to Wm. Walker. Lying at Silver Spring meddow, and containing 3 acres and ¾, more or less, bounded by Jonathan Sparrow's bounds, at the beach by a marked tree, and by Nicholas Snow by a marked tree, and a stake in the marsh. April 27, 1659.

A parcell of upland, granted to William Walker adjoining to his house lott on the southern side, containing two acres more or less, bounded by 3 trees marked. March 6, 1663.

Granted to William Walker, Senior, for (convenience?) to sett his house where his new dwelling house now stands, a small parcell of upland and swamp, containing one acre, more or less, bounded by the swamp side, toward John Mayo's, &c., &c., &c. Feb. 23, 1683.

Granted to Wm. Walker, Senior, a small bitt of land, at the westerly end of his land next the meeting house, that is to say, so much as to make his fence straite from the corner of his land, next Samuel Freeman's, to the corner of his own fence, at the brow of the hill above said Walker's barne—this grant is allowed of by the major part of the men appointed by the Town, to have a negative note in disposing of lands, in the Town of Eastham. Recorded April 30, 1699." THO. PAINE, Town Clerk.

Another grant of two acres is made, same date, and described in vol. 1st, 106 p., of Eastham Records of land and meadow. Tradition says he lived on the North bank of the Great Pond, about 500 yds., west of his father-in-law, Nicholas Snow. There have been houses on the place to this day, and it has been in possession of the Walkers till the purchase lately, by Philip Smith.

His descendants have not been numerous. Living on the sea shore, a considerable number have been engaged in maritime pursuits, and exposed to their perils, some died in early manhood, and others with few or no children.

1. JOHN WALKER,[1] (2)

Of Marshfield,

AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

His origin, and the date of his birth, and of his emigration to this country, are unknown. He first appears in 1643, and his name is in the list of those able to bear arms at that time. Only the scantiest details have been gleaned by the most diligent search for information respecting him. There is no indication of any relationship between him and the other Walkers of the Old Colony. He occupied no prominent position, and was entrusted with no public services. His life was brief. Dying in the prime of his manhood, there was little opportunity, even if his abilities qualified him, to participate in public affairs, so as to have his name conspicuous in the records of the town or Colony. He was on the grand inquest in 1654, and took the oath of fidelity in 1657.

He m. Oct. 20, 1654, Lydia Reed, of Marshfield, dau. of Mrs. Margaret (Reed) Howland, who m. 2d, Arthur Howland, Sen., of M. He had 1 son and 3 daus., and d. or was buried Dec. 11, 1663. In'y, £57: 9: 9. Mr. Howland was a zealous Quaker, and it is probable that, John Walker, his son-in-law, adopted the same religious opinions. Many of his descendants, some in every generation, to the present time, have been members of the Society of Friends. There is a burying ground of this people on the ancient Howland estate, where the early families, bearing these names, Walker and Howland, were buried. As the discipline of this Society did not until lately, allow of memorial stones, no data can be gathered respecting those whose dust is deposited there.

The descendants of John Walker have not been numerous. The family is a small one. The earlier and present generations have been characterized by industry, economy and cheerfulness, and have belonged, with scarcely an exception, to the mechanical and agricultural classes. They have been long-lived and some have reached a great age.

SECOND GENERATION.

CHILDREN OF JOHN WALKER,[1] [1] OF MARSHFIELD.

2. I. LYDIA,[2] b. Sept. 30, 1655, m. March 17, 1684, Wm. Fisher.

3. II. JOHN,[2] (6) b. Oct. 26, 1657, d. 1747, in his 90th yr. Whom he married is unknown. He was a blacksmith, lived in Marshfield, and was a member of the Soc. of Friends. An abstract of his will, made July 13, 1747, is as follows. "To my son, Isaac, improvement of homestead, and meadow land and wood land, in M., and at my decease, the same to go to my gd. son Isaiah and heirs, they paying to heirs of my son John, £100. To gd. son Isaac, all my lands in Pembroke. To gd. son, John, my silver whistle. After debts, funeral charges are paid, all my moveable estate remaining, I give to my gd. chil. My son, Isaac, and gd. son, Isaiah, to be executors." He made his mark, and his will was proved, Aug. 8, 1747. In'y £1376: 14s.

4. III. MARTHA.[2] Nothing is known concerning her.

5. IV. MARY,[2] m. Jan. 29, 1684–5, John Howland, of Duxbury.

THIRD GENERATION.

CHILDREN OF JOHN WALKER,[2] [3] OF MARSHFIELD.

6. I. ISAAC,[3] (8) d. 1750. He m. Oct. 3, 1715, Bethiah Norcut, and had 5 chil. He was a blacksmith and lived in Marshfield. His will was proved Feb. 4, 1750. The In'y of his widow was taken Oct. 7, 1763. He was a Friend.

7. II. JOHN,[3] (13) d. before 1747. (See will of his father, No. 3.) He m. and had chil. or "heirs," probably a son John, to whom was bequeathed the "silver whistle," and others perhaps. There is no record of this John in Marshfield or Plymouth Co. The compiler several yrs. ago found a John Walker, in Dartmouth Rec., as early as 1721, but knew nothing of his origin. Tracing his descendants and finding them mostly members of the Society of Friends, it occurred to him recently, that this John may have rem. to D. On examination it was found that John of D. d. 1742, which harmonizes with John's

(No. 3) will;—he was a blacksmith and a Quaker, and such were this John's father and ancestry. He had a son John, and so had John, of M., for the "gd. son John," in the will, must be his son,—Isaac, his only brother, having no son John. In the list of his 5 chil. in D. Rec., he is called John Jr. His will was proved Oct. 19, 1742. The same name, same religious faith, same occupation, with dates concurring, leave no room for doubt, that this John Jr., removed to Dartmouth. His descendants, with few exceptions, have been members of the Soc. of Friends.

FOURTH GENERATION.

CHILDREN OF ISAAC WALKER,[3] [6] OF MARSHFIELD.

8. I. ISAAC,[4] (18) b. Aug. 8, (25?) 1716, d. 1813, ae. 97 yrs. He m. Abigail Saunders, dau. of John, and had 7 chil. He was a blacksmith and having inherited lands in Pembroke by the will of his grand father, in 1747, he rem. there, as early as 1753. He was the ancestor of the Pembroke Walkers and a Friend. His will was proved June 7, 1813. In'y $3881, 87 cts. The tradition among his descendants in Pembroke, that he was b. in England, is without any foundation, as the ancient wills and deeds show.

9. II. ABRAHAM,[4] (25) b. Feb. 6, 1718, d. 1800. He m. 1750, Betsey Simmons, of Duxbury, whose will was proved, Sept. 7, 1802. In'y $1201. He was a blacksmith, and had 4 chil. Res. Marshfield. The appraisers of his estate were appointed Dec. 23, 1800.

He was quite a noted Tory, and piloted the British troops (who were stationed in Marshfield by Gen. Gage, prior to the Revolution,) to a place suitable for embarkation on Marshfield beach, where a vessel from Boston was in the offing waiting to receive them. This occurred when the news of the battle at Lexington reached M. He with 2 sons, Zara and Benjamin joined the Loyalists at Boston. The sons went away with the British in their evacuation of the town. The father, while fishing near Boston light, for the loyal party, was taken prisoner by a rebel craft, and carried to Springfield jail for safe keeping, he having been one of the 23 Tories who returned thanks to Gen. Gage and Admiral Graves, "for their ready and kind interposition in sending troops to protect them from the threatened insults of their neighbors," meaning the Whig or Revolutionary party. This very party on account of his family, petitioned for his release from prison, and restoration to his family, on the usual conditions which the times demanded. His confession of past bad conduct and promise of good for the future, with that of 11 others, is entered on the books of the town, under date of July 14, 1777.

It is presumed that the Messrs. Walkers proved true friends to their country, after their recantation of Tory sympathies and principles.

JOHN WALKER,

Of Marshfield.

The jury appointed "to view the dead body of John Walker, seruant to Robert Latham of this towne," gave their verdict the last of Jan. 1654. This may be found in the 3d vol. of Plym. Col. Rec.

"Att the Generall Court holden att New Plymouth the sixt day of March, 1654, Robert Latham was indited for fellonious crewelty done vnto John Walker, his seruant, aged about 14 yeares, by vnreasonable conection, by withholding necessary food and clothing, and by exposing his said servant to extremitie of seasons, whereof the said John Walker languished and immediately died, the 15th day of January, anno., 1654."

"A pettye jury was impannelld and sent forth vpon the case. These found the said Robert Latham guilty of manslaughter by chaunc medley. Where vpon the prisoner desired the benefitt of law, viz: a psalue of mercye, which was graunted him, and sentence was further pronownsed against him, which was, that the said Robert Latham should bee burned in the hand, and his haueing noe lands, that all his goods are confiscate vnto his highnes, the Lord Protector; and that the said sentance should bee forthwith executed, which accordingly was pformed the 4th of March, 1654."

FRANCIS WALKER,

Of Middleboro'.

He m. between 1650 and 1668, Elizabeth Soule, dau. of Geo. Soule, the 35th signer of the compact in the May Flower, and one of Richard Warren's Company in the assignments of lands. Nath'l Warren, son of Richard, m. Sarah Walker, 1645, and Nath'l her son, settled in Mid'o. It is a natural conjecture that Francis and Sarah Walker were related. Their origin is unknown. He was one of the proprietors of land in Duxbury, 1672, was living in M., in 1668, and as late as 1673. There is no evidence in the Mid'o', Duxbury, or any Old Colony Records, that he had any descendants, unless the following be such. In the 77th division of land in Mid'o', July 6, 1789, Francis Walker and John Haskell had the 4th and 5th lots. Over 100 yrs. intervene, with not even a link to establish a connection.

THOMAS WALKER,

Of Bristol, R. I.,

AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

1. I. Thomas Walker,[1] (2) was one of the founders of Bristol, in 1681, with the distinguished Capt. Church. His origin is unknown. There is no proof that he was related to the other Walkers of the Old Colony. He was propounded a freeman, and took the oath of fidelity, June 6, 1682. He was a tanner, and owned a windmill or cornmill, "rate free from tax." He filled a prominent place in the affairs of the town, and was honored with various civil offices. In 1702 he was a constable, an assessor in 1682 and '94, on the jury, 1696 and 1707, and tithing-man, 1716. He held the office of Select-man, 1686–7, '92, '98, 1701, 2, 3, 4, 5, 7. He was also a member of the Com., "to agree with Mr. Woodbridge about salary." He m. Nov. 4, 1684, Elizabeth Parris, and had 2 sons and 2 daus. His will was made, 1721–2, when he was "aged and infirm," and was proved 1724. To his wife Eliz'th, who survived him, he bequeathed his "negro boy, Peleg." In'y £133. Her will was made 1735, and proved, April 8, 1743. All that is now known of his participation in public affairs, and the civil distinctions conferred upon him, is given here, and is creditable to his abilities and moral worth. He had few descendants, and his name, it is supposed early became extinct.

SECOND GENERATION.

I., was mem. of the Legislature, 1760, and Dea. of the 2d Cong. ch. His funeral sermon, preached by his pastor, Rev. Joseph Snow, Jr., was from the text, Acts, 8th chap., 2d v., "And devout men carried Stephen to his burial, and made great lamentation over him;" a very appropriate text, inasmuch as the Deacons of the several religious societies in P. officiated as pall-bearers. Hon. James Burrill, of R. I., Attorney General many yrs., Chief Justice of the Supreme Judicial Court, and U. S. Senator, distinguished for splendor of genius and purity of life, was her gd. son. For further information respecting his ancestry and her descendants, see Rawson Genealogy, and Gen. Reg., vol. 3d, 1849.

17. VI. ANNA.[4]?

Mrs. May of B., b. 1762, says, (1859) that she remembers John Walker and his 2 daus., and that their names were Betsey and Anna, not Abigail. Perhaps Abigail died, and another dau. Anna may have been born after her, whose name is not given with the others in the Town Rec. She has no recollection of any son John. Several other very aged persons in B., who knew the family, have no recollection of any son. If John, No. 14, d. unm., or without issue, this Bristol Family of Walkers is extinct, having no male descendants after the 4th generation.

APPENDIX.

To show how abundantly the race of Walkers was early planted in the soil of New England, brief notices of those of the Mass. Colony, and other sections of N. E., who were here before 1700, are introduced. There were 14 of the name in the country, even before 1650, not including those of the Old Colony, nor those related to each other.

The statistics of the present extent of the name in our cities, may fitly follow the list just given, of the Walkers who settled in N. Eng. before 1700. These are gleaned from the business directories of 1857, '58, '59 or '60, in most cases. The numbers do not, of course, include more than half of those bearing the name, resident there, the chil., and many single persons being omitted. Doubtless many of these are of foreign birth. The compiler found this to be the fact in Providence, R. I. A very few, only, of Old Colony descent, are included in these numbers—these are in Providence, Detroit, and Chicago. There is only one in Boston, one in Phil., and none in N. Y. City. The London Directory of 1855, had 234 of the name.

AUTHORS NAMED WALKER.

These are not given with any idea that there is any connection between them and the families in this work, but as a part of the history of the name.

GEORGE WALKER, Batch. of Divinity. "This learned person was b. at Hawkeshead in Tournifalls in Lancashire, educated at St. John's Coll., in the Univ. of Cambridge where he was esteemed an excellent logician, Orientalian and Divine. He was at this time Minister in Watling St., in London, where he was ready upon all occasions, to encounter with any learned Catholic priest. On the last of May, 1623, was a set and solemn disputation between him and one that went by the name of Smith. It was published for the satisfaction of both parties, with this title, "The sum of a Disputation between Mr. Walker, Pastor of St. John the Evang., &c., and a popish priest, calling himself Mr. Smith," but indeed Norris, printed 1623. In the year following, he, the said W., had to do with the Father, John Fisher, the Jesuit, as being Dr. Dan. Featly's second, and thereupon published, "Fisher's Folly unfolded, or the vaunting Jesuit's challenge answered," Lond. 1624. Afterwards, when another Walker who was a severe Puritan, beheld the profanation of the Lord's Day as he took it, he preached against this, and other Practices and Opinions, which procured him trouble, and 2 yrs. imprisonment, as he said. After the Tory Parliament began, he preached against the King and his followers, and published several things, which before, he was not permitted to do, among which were; (1) Socinianism in the fundamental point of justification, discovered and confuted, &c., London Oct. 1641. (2) The Doctrine of the Holy weekly Sabbath, &c. Lond., 1641. In the yr. 1643 he was chosen one of the assembly of Divines, preached sometimes before the members of Parliament and had his sermons made public, one of which is entitled, "Fast sermon before the House of Commons, Jan. 29,

He hath also other things extant, as, "God made visible in all his works, &c., printed 1641, qu., &c., which for brevity's sake, I now pass by and only tell you, that he died in 1651, ae. about 70, and was buried in ch. of St. John Evang., before mentioned. In Arch. Laud's annual account of his Province, to the King, for the yr. 1635, at the end of his Troubles and Tryal, p. 535, the Reader may find him thus mentioned:"

"Mr. W., of St. John, the Evang., in London, (a Peculiar of mine,) who hath at this time been a disorderly and peevish man, and now of late, hath very forwardly preached against the Bish. of Ely's Book, concerning the Lord's Day Act, and by authority. But upon a canonical admonition given him to desist, he hath recollected himself, so also in the said history of the Troubles and Tryal of Arch. Laud, Cap. 23, p. 237, George Walker, for preaching Factious matters was imprisoned by the Council Table, and afterwards upon some carriage of his, there censured by the Court of the Star Chamber." INVENTORS.

The 1st real printing press was made by the Earl of Stanhope, Eng., assisted by a skillful mechanic named Walker. It was an improvement of Blaew's machine, invented about 1620. Instead of using the old wooden screw and wooden frame, which had been employed in all previous inventions, he made a press of iron and combined the screw with the bent lever, and also contrived a movable carriage for holding the forms of type. He also arranged the spring, so that as soon as the impression was given, it caused the platen to fly up. This press was at once adopted in Eng. and Am., and for a long time, maintained its supremacy over all others.

JOHN WALKER, in Stockton upon Tees, Eng., d. May 18, 1860, ae. 78. He was a chemist, and said to be the inventor of Lucifer Matches, in 1827.

The earliest births and latest deaths in each Branch and in each Generation have been almost uniformly those named Walker, and not those whose mothers were Walkers. The Rehoboth Branch alone, has several of the 6th gen. living ——. The generations of the Eastham and Marshfield Families do not correspond in time with those of the Rehoboth and Taunton Families, these having an earlier ancestress in Widow Walker. This should be kept in mind in a comparison. Accordingly the 1st gen. of E. and M. Families, are put in line with the 2d gen. of the T. and R. Families, as they were contemporaneous generations, and the same order holds with all the others. The generations of the Rehoboth Branch have been of longest duration, and it has the oldest member living.

Of the Taunton Branch the 9th gen. was b. 2 yrs. before the 5th died, and the 10th was b. 27 yrs. before the death of the 6th. Of the Rehoboth Branch the 8th gen. was b. 2 yrs. before the death of the 4th, and the 9th b. 15 yrs. before the death of the 5th. The 6th generation is living yet, once contemporaneous with the 3d, and now with the 11th, and as the earliest of the 3d was b. 1655, those of the 6th now living, stand on an eminence looking before and after, over a period of 205 yrs.

Of the Eastham family, the 6th was contemporaneous with the 3d, and some of them are now living. The 8th gen. was b. before the 4th and the 9th before the 5th.

Additions and Explanations.

TAUNTON BRANCH.

James Walker was not one of the 1st purchasers of Taunton in 1638, but of Rehoboth, and an early settler of T. 5 yrs. after its purchase.

Baylies in his Mem. of Plym. Col., Part III., p. 54th, giving a history of Philip's War, says, "Philip being driven to desperation, effected his escape from the Pocasset swamp, in the night of the last day of July (1675) and fled to the Nipmuck country. A part of his force spread themselves into the wilderness about Taunton, where they succeeded in burning the houses of John Tisdill, and James Walker. Tisdill was killed, and two other soldiers, viz: John Knolles and Samuel Atkins of Eastham." (Plym. Col. Records, give June 27, 1675, as the date of John Tisdill's death.) Their "houses in the wilderness" confirm the supposition that James Walker lived in the South part of Taunton, (3 miles from the village,) where lands were granted to him, and where his descendants have lived ever since. This was on the route of the Indians from Pocasset swamp to Taunton. Probably, after the destruction of his house, he removed to the village, and lived "near the ancient meeting house." (See 8th p. and 18th line.) Baylies says he was re-elected deputy in 1654, but the Plym. Col. Rec. state this as his 1st election.

P. 14. Assonate Neck was divided, 1680, among the proprietors who purchased it, viz.: Rev. Geo. Shove, Jas. Walker and John Tisdill, &c.

P. 18. John Tisdill of Duxbury, propounded for freedom, Sept. 7, 1642, was admitted March 7, 1642-3. He was constable in Taunton, June 8, 1655. (Plym. Col. Rec. vol. 3d, p. 78.) one of the purchasers of Assonate Neck, 1659, and Select-man in T., 1773 and '74.

The following statement, will show the completeness of this work, as a Genealogy of the Walkers of the Old Colony, and how few families, either of the males or females, have not been included. This feature of the work, is especially observable in regard to the Taunton and Rehoboth Families, and to the males who alone perpetuate the name.

Every male line has been traced with the following exceptions:

TAUNTON BRANCH.—Nos. 59, James,[6] of N. Y. city. 187, John,[7] of Wis., now living.

REHOBOTH BRANCH.—89, Elijah,[5] of Providence, R. I. 115, Stephen.[5] 116, Levi,[5] both b. in Rehoboth. 135, Peter.[6] 199, Joseph.[6] 200, John,[6] both b. in Ashford, Ct. 207, James.[6] 249—252, Wm.[6] Theadon.[6] Walter.[6] Worden,[6] all in Canada. 551, Caleb.[7] 552, Joseph.[7] 1732, Edward.[9] 1733, Fisher.[9] Doubtless some of these had no descendants, and have baffled all inquiries, because dying young or without issue. The following have chil., whose names are not reported. 546, Joseph,[7] of Penn. 722, Joseph B.,[7] of Centerville, Ia. 723, Wm.[7] 727, Nathan.[7] 728, Daniel.[7] These are all living and the last 3 in West Canaan, O.

EASTHAM FAMILY.—Nos. 24, Nath'l.[4] 30, Joshua.[4] 36, Nath'l.[4] 37, Matthew.[4] The following have descendants whose names have not been reported. Nos. 58, David,[5] of Me. 178, Subinus,[6] of Limestone, N. Y. 181, Joseph.[6] 208, Augustus,[7] of Vt. 209, Allen.[7] 302, Warren R.[7] 303, Willard,[7] both of South Gibson, Pa. These are living except No. 58.

MARSHFIELD FAMILY.—Nos. 27, Zara,[5] (Tory banished.) 96, Abraham.[6] 98, Summers,[6] of Hammond, N.Y. 100, Wing.[6] 113, Harris.[5] Of the males who have baffled all search and inquiry, there are only 2 in the Taunton Branch, 15 in the Rehoboth, 4 in the Eastham, and 5 in the Marshfield, making 26 out of about 3300.

The chil. of all the females named Walker, and intermarried with persons of other names, (and in many cases their gd. chil. and gt. gd. chil.) are given with the following exceptions:

Nos. 9,[3] 11,[3] 13,[3] 14,[3] 16,[3] 19,[3] 32,[4] 75,[5] married, but may have had no chil.

One of the 3d gen., 3 of 4th, 8 of 5th, 8 of 6th, 28 of 7th, had chil., but their names have not been obtained. Most of those of the 6th or 7th generations are now living.

MARSHFIELD FAMILY.—Nos. 2,[2] 5,[2] 10,[4] 97,[6] married, but may have had no chil.

Three of 4th gen., 6 of 5th, 9 of 6th, 13 of 7th, married and had chil., whose names have not been reported. Most of those of the 6th and 7th generations are now living.

The names of chil., whose mothers were Walkers, are given therefore in all cases, with the exception of 11 Families, in the Taunton, 42 in the Rehoboth, 48 in the Eastham, and 36 in the Marshfield Branch. Undoubtedly some of these had no chil., or they would have been ascertained.

MISCELLANEOUS.

NAMES OF WALKERS IN THE OLD COLONY WHICH THE COMPILER CANNOT TRACE TO THE PROPER RELATIONSHIPS.

The three following, are from a record of marriages, solemnized by Major Thomas Leonard, of Taunton, between 1684 to 1713. The manuscript is still extant.

John Walker and Mary Knoles were married 22d of July, 1684. This may have been John, No. 3, of the Marshfield Branch. There is no trace of any descendants in Taunton.

John Paul and Dorothy Walker married May 26, 1692.

Benj. Jones and Hannah Walker married April 8, 1695.

James Walker, of Dartmouth, was sergeant in Capt. Dan'l Egrey's Co., under Col. Timothy Danielson in Rev. War. (Coat Rolls.)

Elizabeth Walker, d. 1718, ae. 42 yrs. (Ins. in Seekonk Cemetery.) This was probably 2d w. of Sam'l, No. 2, p. 122. She m. 2d, John Smith, and her 1st married name was doubtless put upon the stone by her chil.

Enos Walker and Levina Hoyt m. July 19, 1840. (Seekonk Rec.)

Isaac Walker, late of town of Woodbridge, in Co. of Middlesex, East New Jersey, now of Little Compton, R. I., sold land in Middleboro', 1702.

Francis Walker and John Haskell, in the division of the 77th lot in Mid'o, had 4th and 5th lots, July 6, 1789. INDEX.

PART FIRST of this Index, contains the christian names of all the Walkers embraced in this volume, excepting those who died under 12 yrs. of age. Of these, there are 68 of the Taunton, 265 of the Rehoboth, 55 of the Eastham, 46 of the Marshfield, and 2 of the Bristol Family, making an aggregate of 436, out of 3447.

Part Second contains the names of persons who have married Walkers, or their descendants. The names of the parents of those who have married Walkers and descendants of Walkers, are to a considerable extent, given in the Genealogy, but they are not indexed, as their surnames appear in Part II.

The number on the right of a name refers to the page. Two or more references to the same person, are included in a parenthesis. The figure on the left of a name, indicates the generation of the person. The letters on the left of the figures, denote the Branch of the Family to which the person belongs; thus T. is for Taunton, R. for Rehoboth, E. for Eastham, M. for Marshfield, B. for Bristol, and A. denotes the Walkers of the Mass. Colony mentioned in the Appendix.

If any reference should prove incorrect, the name may be found upon the page following the one referred to.
